UNEMPLOYMENT RATE EASES A BIT TO 7.8%; NO BASIC SHIFT SEEN

TOTAL OF JOBS IS ALSO DOWN

Carter Is Critical of the Economic Developments but Greenspan

By EDWARD COWAN

Takes an Optimistic View

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8-The national unemployment rate eased a trifle in September, but there was no fundamental change in the employment-unemployment picture, the Labor Department reported today.

A dip in the jobless rate, to 7.8 percent from 7.9 percent in August, was of interest chiefly because the report was the last the Bureau of Labor Statistics will issue before the Nov. 2 election and because Jimmy Carter, the Democratic candidate, has made an issue of the economy.

The bureau said that total employment, as measured by a monthly survey of 47,000 households, bad declined by 162,000 to 87,819,000. However, nonfarm payroll employment as reported by companies increased by 240,000 to 79,561,000. The gain was 140,00 after allowing for the return to work of striking rubber workers and coal miners.

Carter Sees Weakness

Citing the drop in total job bolding, including slippage among farmers, Mr. Carter said, "Production is not strong enough to put our people back to work." Alan Greenspan, Presideot Ford's chief economic adviser, said that the rise in nonfarm payroll jobbolding for the third month in a row confirmed that economic recovery was continuing but at a slowed rate that he said would accelerate in the fourth quarter. 'The underlying trend still looks pretty much intact," he said. Mr. Greenspan's contection that the payroll data were a better measure of generally supported by economists, More-

PEKING, Oct. 8-China announced tonight that the body of Mao Tse-tung would be placed io a crystal sarcophagus and displayed in a mausoleum to be constructed in Peking. The announcement came at the end of a month of official mourning for the chairman of the Chinese Communist Party, who died on Sept. 9 at the age of 82. The site of the mausoleum was not specified. The decision was made, the an-pouncement said, to perpetnate the memory of "the great leader and teacher" and "so that the broad masses of the people will be able to pay respects to the remains." The announcement, made public by Hsinhua, the official press agency, did not state whether tha decision had been in accordance with Chairman Mao's wisbes. Some Chinese sources said shortly after his death that he had expressed the wish that his body be cremated, as Prime Minister Chou Enlai's was early this year. But other Chinese sources had indicated that there had been a strong popular demand in Peking and in the provinces that the body be displayed, as Lenin's body is in Moscow. Foreigners in Peking have not yet seen any sign that construction of a mansoleum has begun. But many parts of the capital remain inaccessible to foreigners. Certain areas of the part of Peking that is called the Forbidden City are normally open; they have been closed since Chairman Mac's death. Hainbug also announced plans to publish the fifth volume of Chairman Man's selected writings and to issue a complete edition of his works. The publication of these "immortal Marxist-Leninist documents," the announcement said, would be under the direct supervision of the Political Bureau of the party's Central Committee led by-Prime Minister Hua Kuo-feng.

Geography and Snow Isolate Turkish City, but Change His

pecial to The New York Time

ERZURUM, Turkey, Oct. 3-It won't be long now. The first snow has already brushed the tops of the bare brown hills above the city. Soon it will bury everything, and Erzurum will not see the ground again until June. It won't be long now. The Talk streets of this provincial capital are full of horse erzurum and coal and hay. The poor are shaping animal manure into flat, round cakes and stacking them up outside their doors—the only fuel they can afford.

It won't be long now. When a fire breaks out the engines will be blocked and the blaze will go unchecked. When someone dies his coffin will not fit through the narrow paths backed out of the drifts. "We have two enemies," said Mayor Orhan Serifsoy. "One is winter. The other is the Russians."

The brutal climate is the main reason why eastrn Turkey - sometimes called the Wild East - remains the most backward part of the country. The 18 provinces on this side of the Euphrates River contain 30 percent of Emphrates River contain 30 percent of the territory and 20 percent of the peo-ple, but they leave only 10 percent of public and 3 percent of private invest-ment. There is one doctor for every 588 people in Istanbul and one for every 4,500 in Erzurum.

Recent years have seen many changes and many problems. Cities are swelling; Erzurum has 160,000 people, four times its prewar total. The east is awakening, aspirations are rising and the gap between what people have and what they want is growing.

"The big change occurs when the children go away to school, particularly after university." said Dundar Ozden, a lawyer and politician. "They do not

This high valley, more than 6,000 feet above sea level, was a frontier outpost for the Byzantine Empire and a major way station on the great eastwest caravan routes. When the caravans stopped, so did Erzurum's main income. With a growing season of only four months, the land will not produce much except wheat and hay.

"Everybody talks about developing the east, but everybody wants to set up in the west," an economist noted.
"If you stick a businessman out in Erzurum, you have to put everything on trucks, and it costs a great deal. Besides, the markets are in the west, the technology is in the west, the existing plants are in the west." As the Mayor noted, the second

Moreover, eastern Turkey is the home of the Kurds, an ethnic group with a strong desire for autonomy. Some Turks believe that the Government has kept the east backward as a way of Civil servants are transferred out here as punishment. As Fikret Otyam, a journalist who specializes in eastern problems, put it, "The Government is still behaving as if the place was some sort of colony."

Partly for such reasons the area has remained a stronghold of Islam. Erzu-rum is plastered with signs advertising package deals for the pilgrimage to Mecca required of Moslems.

The changes are coming, slowly but steadily. Turkey adopted a multiparty democracy after World War II, and now no politician can afford to ignore the east. "They need our vote," ex-plained Mr. Ozden, the lawyer.

VORSTER REJECTS DEMAND BY BLACKS

Says He Sees 'No Merit' in Plan for a Convention to Discuss Country's Racial Problems

By JOHN F. BURNS

JOHANNESBURG, Oct. 8-The first direct negotiations between Prime Minister John Vorster and the black leaders of South Africa since the recent hlack upheaval began today with Mr. Vorster rejecting a demand for a multiracial convention to discuss the country's racial problems, saying he saw "no merit in the idea at all."

At the meeting in Pretoria with seven homeland leaders, Mr. Vorster also rejected a demand for the release of more than 300 black leaders who have been detained without trial. The Prime Minister said he was "not prepared, could oot and would not interfere with the law."

The meeting, which lasted nearly seven hours, followed nearly four months of desultory discussions between members of Mr. Vorster's Cahinet and a group called the Committee of 30, repres moderate leaders from the urban black communities. The discussions have produced a Government commitment to a number of minor reforms, but no major moves away from the system of separate racial development.

By agreeing to meet with the homeland leaders, Mr. Vorster was acknowledging their role, in the Government's eyes, as the authentic leaders of South Africa's 18 million blacks. While refusing blacks equal rights in the country as a whole, the Government has offered them emancipation in the homelands, areas carved out of the old tribal domains. The policy has been universally rejected by leaders of the urban blacks.

Zuln Leader Unimpressed The meeting with the Prime Minister ended with a joint communiqué, but ooe of the most important of the homeland leaders, Gatsha Buthelezi, nominal leader of the country's 4.8 million Zulus, the largest black group, spoke dismissively of the outcome. Asked if the encounter had been productive, be replied: "Not from my point of view."

Although the causes of black unrest were not discussed at today's meeting, agreement in principle was reached on agreement in principle was reached on a number of other black demands. The communique said Mr. Vorster responded positively to the homeland leaders' demand for an end to discrimination and a narrowing of the huge wage gap be-tween white and black workers.

The statement said it was also agreed that free equipment and compulsory education for blacks and free equipment, including books should be introduced as including books, should be introduced as soon as practicable. At present, education is compulsory for whites up to 16. The vast majority of black students drop out after completing two or three years of primary school.

United States stirred general resentment among the Portuguese today.

In a rare show of agreement, the conservative press and leftist press alike denounced Mr. Ford's suggestion that his country had prevented a Communist takeover in Portugal last year. In his debate with Jimmy Carter Wednesday night, the President cited this country as one of his Government's successes in containing Communism. The Communists and far-leftists took the Ford statement as "a confession" of intervention by the Central Intelligence Agency in Portuguese internal affairs.

Americans here, businessmen in particular, reacted cynically to Mr. Ford's statement. They have criticized his Administration for "abdicating" responsibility to help democratic forces in Portugal.

The Communist Party daily, O Diario, declared in an editorial that Mr. Ford's admission of American intervention in Doctoral's interval affairs. Portugal's internal affairs was "shocking and insolent." The pro-Communist Diario de Lishoa said the Ford statement merely confirmed rumors of C.LA. counterrevolu-

A TV Flap Over Carter in Italy

ROME, Oct. 8—The director of an Italian television channel acknowledged today that two key statements on Italy had been edited from an interview with Jimmy Carter, leaving the impression that he takes a calm view of the rising strength of the Italian Communist Party. Ivor Seward Richard

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 8-The puffs of smoke mounting from his thick pipe are a measure intensity of Ivor Richard's concentrathick pipe are a measure of the tion. The harder he is thinking, the faster they come.

The air around the head of Her Britannic Majesty's Man m the to the United Nations has been very thick indeed the last few days as Mr. Richard prepared for what dooms as the most delicate and demanding task oow facing British diplomacy. Mr. Richard is to preside at the coming conference at which rival black and white groups of Rhodesia seek to work out arrangements for the transition to majority rule.

The summons for this task came out of the hiue, in a telephone call from London to his office overlooking Third Avenue nine days ago. "I was totally surprised and I must say, rather flattered to be chosen," Mr. Richard said, in full awareness that this is a chore that could, if he succeeds, end a decade-long problem, for British foreign policy, move southern Africa away from the brink of racial war and project a relatively young and am-bitious Labor Party politician to spectacular prominence in his party.

'Not a Professional Diplomat' "I am a professional politician, not a professional diplomat," Mr. Richard says proudly. Named to the United Nations post in March 1974, shortly after an election upset ended his 10-year tenure in Parliament, the new representative told everyone here that he would be a short-timer, that his true love was the House of Commons, to which he hoped to return as quickly

Yet within a few weeks, his tune had changed; perhaps against his expectations, be found himself loving the diplomatic world and he has emerged as one of the most popular chiefs of mission at the United Nations. One of the main reasons why the British Gov-ernment chose him for the Rhodesia coofereoce assignment, apparently, is his popularity among the African diplomats in New York.

So closely and comfortably does he work with third-world representatives that one leading African diplomat quietly took him aside a few months ago and said, "Look, next week we must work up a big public fight with each other—just so we look all right back bome."

Ivor Seward Richard was born on May 30, 1932 in a tough mining district of South Wales, but his father was an inspector of mines, in the civil service,

He went to a British "public" school—that is, a private boarding school—hat not one of the exclusive upper class preserves. He went on to Oxford University, but his residential college there was Pembroke, more noted for its intel-lectual distinction than its social pres-

The draft law must pass through Pariameot, which is a bastioo of right-wing holdovers from the Franco period.
Though the Government is confident of

The proposed limitation on wage settlements seemed likely to erase whatever goodwill with the unofficial unions their goodwill with the unornicial umons their legalization might gain.

In order to avoid lengthy negotiations during what many fear will be a period of labor unrest, Mr. Osorio said, bargaining time on wage settlements will be limited. And future wage increases, he said, will bave to be "fundamentally" within the rise of the cost of living.

It was not clear what precise restric-tions on wage raises the Government had in mind. But it seemed that it intended to keep wage increases in tandem with the rate of inflation, which has been run-ning at an annual rate of about 20 per-

The Government also decided to take a number of energy-saving measures, including a mandatory 63-mile-per-hour speed limit on highways, in order to refuce the consumption of petroleum products, which make up 27 percent of Spain's import bill. Other measures include reduction in public lighting, limitations on the use of petroleum products in certain in-dustries and electricity surcharges.

Small Midwest Breweries Are Fighting for Survival

MONROE, Wis .- Hattie's Bar and Grill, on busy State Route 69 in this small town near the Illinois line, has its name on a sign that advertises Old

Over at the Swiss Wheel Inn, a Pabst Blue Ribbon sign greets patrons, while Ludlow's Tavern has two beer aigns, one promoting Schitz, the second larg-est brand in the country, and the other touting Huber's, a local beer.

In towns like Morroe, where many of America's few remaining small breweries operate, the diversity of such signs represents the battle for survival that local breweries are waging against the major beer companies.

Theodore Eisch, who is particularly irked by Schlitz, feels that the big companies are out to drive the small ones from the business. His viewa are parti-san, though. He is the brewmaster for the Joseph Huber Brewing Company and has worked most of his life in small breweries.

"Schlitz wants to be No. 1 all over the country," be complained recently to a visitor. (That status is held by a St. Louis-based company, Anheuser

Big Companies Criticized

"There'll always be a place for good small breweries," Mr. Eisch said, "but the big companies are out to do us in. They're ruthless."

The charges that some of the large companies were attempting to drive out the smaller breweries have under investigation for several years preweries bave been by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and a Federal grand jury in Milwaukee. The charges include payoffs and bribes to retailers to stock certain brands.

William O'Shea executive director of the Brewers Association of America, which is based in Chicago and represents smaller companies, accused the big companies of paying off botel and restaurant chains to use only their beers. He said the smaller companies were the major victims of "such unfair

A spokesman for the larger compa-nies denied the charges and refused to comment further since the matter is under investigation.

Decline of Small Breweries

Small breweries like Huber's have experienced a sharp decline in numbers since their heyday immediately after the repeal of Prohibition. In the midthe repeat of Promittion. In the mid-1930s, Wisconsin had 79 legal brew-eries (angmented by innumerable ille-gal ones, according to brewery offi-cials). Only six remain, including the three big Milwaukee companies—Jos. M. Schlitz Brewing Company, Pabst and Miller.

Nationally, the number has dwindled from 750 in 1934 to S6 today. New York City, which 20 years ago had five breweries, now has none. There is only one remaining in Chicagn, where nnce there were 60. Cincinnati had 35 hut

'The decline was due to a combination of many things," Robert G. Ma-rntz, executive secretary of the Wisconsin State Brewers Association, said. "The brewers weren't able to keep up with the times in the operation of the business. The children and grand-children didn't have the enthusiasm the original owners had. Some of the brewers were not good businessmen. Just a whole combination of things,"

Some Help From Congress

To aid small brewers, Congress passed a bill last month that would cut the excise tax from $9 to $7 a barrel on the first 60,000 barrels of beer. Wisconsin gives small breweries a similar tax break,

The new Federal law would aid Hubers less than three other small breweries in Wisconsin. Huber's, the largest of the four, produces 250,000 barrels annually.

The company is run by Joseph Huber, still active at the age of 84. Speaking with a heavy German accent, Mr. Huber said that his beer was still heaved in the said that his beer was still brewed in the original building con-structed in 1848 by German immi-

"The company has operated off and on since 1848. I started working for it when I was young and bought it in 1940 from the original family," said Mr. Huber as be walked from the old plant across the street to a newer building where the beer is bottled, crated and shinned. crated and shipped.

Loss of Heritage Seen

Supporters of small breweries feel that a heritage is being destroyed by the loss of the smaller companies, many of which were started in the 19th century by German immigrants and are still family-owned.

"It was part of the German heritage," said Mr. Marotz, "We used to say there was a brewery as far as a horse could walk without collapsing."

"Shawano, a town of 4,000, had two breweries at one time. The loss of the breweries at one time. The loss of the breweries in these small towns not only means a loss of heritage but also has a tremendous economic impact. The loss of 40 or 20 jobs in a small town is substantial. There is nothing to take up the slack and you've got people who are not trained for anything else with those special skills," he added.

Production Costs Have Risen

Mr. Eisch said that production costs have risen drastically in the last few years. But, he said, "You can raise the price of a bottle of beer by only so much or you'll be out of business, nothing comparable to the rise in produc-tion." Malt, a chief ingredient in beer, was $1.86 a bushel two years ago; now

In Monroe, a town of 9,000, the largest ethnic group in the area is not German but Swiss, and they, with their heritage of cheese-making, have joined with their German neighbors to make this a cheese and beer community. One resident, eating a chunk of cheese and drinking a glass of Huber's, was asked if there was a difference in Huber's and, say, Schlitz.

"Not a belluva lot that I can tell," he replied. "But Huber's pays a lot of salaries in this town. That's why I

NIXON COMPLICITY REPORTED BY DEAN

Ex-Counsel, in Book, Involves His. Former Chief As the Central Figure in Watergate Case

By HERBERT MITGANG

In his book, "Blind Ambition. The White House Years," John W. Dean 3d, President Nixon's counsel and a key fig-ure in the Watergate affair and trials, continues to implicate Mr. Nixon as the entral personality in the break-in and the cover-up.

The 415-page book turned up in some bookstores yesterday in advance of its early November publication date, and at the Doubleday store on Fifth Avenue and 53d Street, it immediately attracted buyer attention. Mr. Dean's book appears about one year in advance of the tentatively titled, "President Nixon's Memoirs," portions of which have already found their way into news reports. Mr. Dean's book is a full selection of the Book of the Month Club

He traces the origins of the Waterpate break-in at Democratic National Headquarters in Washington to a memoran-dum dictated by Mr. Nixon to H. R. Haldeman, his White House chief of staff, on Jan. 14, 1971.

"It would seem that the time is ap roaching when Larry O'Brien Democrat ic party chairman] is held accountable for his retainer with [Howard] Hughes," the President said, in the Dean account.
"Bebe [Rebozo] has some information on this, although it is, of course, not solid. But there is no question that one of Hughes's people did have O'Brien on a very heavy retainer for 'services ren-dered' in the past. Perhaps [Charles W.] Colson should check on this."

On the controversial "Huston plan" authorizing domestic intelligence-gathering illegally, Mr. Dean also attributes responsibility to President Nixon.

Reports Restraints Removed

"The President, I discovered, had ordered removal of most of the legal restraints on gathering intelligence about left-wing groups," he writes. "He had authorized wiretaps, mail intercepts and burglaries. These were the hottest papers had ever touched. The plan had the full support of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Council—of everyone except Hoover's F.B.L. Hoover had footnoted the document with an objection that the risk of each illegal method was greater than the potential return."

The Dean account of Watergate collides with some of the assertions of lack of knowledge on the part of Mrs. Manage ported by those who have read a 164-page ported by those who have read a 164-page knowledge on the part of Mr. Nixon remanuscript by the former President deal-ing with his last two weeks in the White House, This manuscript was prepared as House. This manuscript was prepared as part of an international sales effort by Mr. Nixon's book recrasentatives.

Mr. Dean asserts, "From the beginning I knew that the vulnerability of the Watergate affair spread broadly across the whole Administration. The lesser aides came to the counsel with confessions; the higher aides commenced to behave in a stealthy manner. I simply assumed both from the facts I knew and ypewriter used as evidence against Alger Hiss when Mr. Nixon was a young Con-gressman from California building a repuation as a Communist-fighter.

In a hearsay report from Mr. Colson, special counsel to the President, Mr. Dean writes that Mr. Nixon was making one of his frequent references to how he had fought to prove that Mr. Hiss, a State Department official, was "a Communist and a perjurer."

HOUSTON, Oct. 8 (UPI)—Tennes in the content of the president, Mr. torney General John Hill has neuropathologist to study the He department of the president, Mr. Hughes autopsy report and, if no to conduct medical tests to determine the conduct medical tests to determine t

"The typewriters are always the key," the President told Chuck [Mr. Dean writes]. "We built one in the Hiss case." There is no further explanation of this assertion quoted by Mr. Coison in the Dean book nor is the point made a second

In his trial for perjury, Mr. Hiss denied knowledge of the typewriter evidence used against him, and the same denials have appeared recently in studies of the Hiss case based on documents given up by the Federal Government under the reedom of Information Act.

Both Gerald R. Ford, then House Republican leader, and Senator Robert J. Dole, then Republican party chairman, are quoted as Nixon Administration loyalists during the Watergate affair. But neither is implicated by Mr. Dean as a participant in the break-up or cover-up.

Toward the end of his book, Mr. Dean does make a remark against the selection of Representative Ford to succeed Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. Recalling a conversation with his wife, Mo, he says the told her that President Nixon had "bought bimself an inaurance policy" be-cause there would then be no Republican groundswell for him to resign. "There won't be a big push to put Jerry Ford in the White House," Mr. Dean declares.

2d Debate Showed a Change of Charact

By JOSEPH LELYVELD Special to The New York Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 8-If the cycle of Presidential debates can be viewed for argument's sake as a television serial, then the second episode Wednesday night can be said to have turned on the development it showed in the character of the challenger.

Jimmy Carter.

Jimmy Carter.

In the first episode two weeks ago, Mr. Carter was widely expected to play his role aggressively, interpreting it as John F. Kennedy did when it was first performed for a TV audience in 1960.

Instead this year's challenger started Instead, this year's challenger started off nervously on a seemingly diffident note. President Ford, who had been expected to sound defensive, seized the initiative early and won critical acclaim by doing so.

Wednesday night the tables were turned. Expectations for Mr. Carter's performance were low, oot only he-cause the subject-foreign policy and defense-was presumed to place him at a disadventage but also because the expectations had been lowered by the polls and commentary that followed the first debate. Thus, as the President did the first time around, the chellenger was able to make a stronger impression because less was expected of him.

The Importance of Poise

As in 1960, foreign policy issues provided more fertile ground than do-mestic ones for the cultivation of the challenger's image. And, as in 1960, this had little to do with the substance of the issues. Substantive differences were narrow then and narrow Wednesday but precisely because the issues were remote from the experience of the ordinary viewer, the overall poise and stance of the candidates could be expected to make a stronger impression than the cogency of their arguments.

The Ford camp had assumed that the President's greater experience in foreign affairs would simply manifest itself on television and that Mr. Ford would be able to dismiss the arguments of the challenger as callow and inconsequential. But in his effort to appear authoritative, Mr. Ford had difficulty sustaining the impression of steadfastness he left in the first debate. Just as Mr. Carter lost his themes in a welter of statistics then, Mr. Ford merely defensive or in wordy discussions of MIRV's and Cruise missiles that almost cried out for the subtitles used in foreign-language films so that the home audience might have some ideas of what these devices were. The President labored to overcome his habit of looking at the questioners rather than the camera and to vary his intonation and cadences for emphasis. But the more defensive he became, the more he lapsed into the flat accents and style of his news conference performances. In terms of image, he offered nothing new-

New Style for Carter

The challenger, on the other hand, had evolved a new and more congenial debating style. In part, Mr. Carter's performance could be viewed as a tribute to Mr. Ford's preparations for their first encounter. In Philadelphia, Mr. Carter rarely looked at his opponent for longer than 10 seconds. The President there fixed Mr. Carter with a steady glare that looked frozen and stiff when it was watched for minutes. at a time in the theater but resolute and tough when it showed up in fleeting "cutaway" shots on the TV screeo.

Wednesday night, Mr. Carter nad learned the trick of staring back. But he had also learned to vary his posture—to sit down, for instance, as Mr. Ford has yet to do in nearly three end onehalf hours on the stage set being used for the debates.

By looking more relaxed, Mr. Carter seemed to make the President look a little stiff in comparison-an impression that may have been deepened by the camers work of the CBS pool, which focused less tightly on the faces of the candidates and, as a result, showed more of their gestures and posture. The Eastern Europe Issue

By any reckoning, the turning point came in the fourth round of questions, about 20 minutes into the debate. In the theater in the Pelace of Fine Arts. there were audible gasps in the press section when the Presideot flatly de-rlared: "There is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe."

But there were elements in the exchange thet passed the theater audience by. Just en instant before the President stumbled into a damaging confroversy, he had been straining to appeal to precisely the ethnic audience he was to risk offending. The appeal. came in the form of a warning to Mr. Carter not to allege that "His Holiness the Pope" had signed over the Warsaw Pact nations to the Soviet Union. In that instant, Mr. Carter who showed up taking notes in a shot of both candidates on TV screens, raised his chin and smiled. His look of amusement seemed not only to dismiss Mr. Ford's debating point but to underscore his own self-composure relative to his

Mr. Ford's surprising declaration about Eastern Europe was greeted incredulously by the questioner, Max Frankel of The New York Times, who then asked a follow-up question that gave the President an opportunity to restate his position. But Mr. Ford got himself into potentially deeper trouble hy specifically identifying the Poles as a people who don't consider themselves dominated by the Russians.

Ford on the Defensive

Mr. Carter's earlier smile was probably as effective in the whole exchange as his subsequent rebuttal, which was relatively muted. In any case, from round four on, the President seemed to be on the defensive.

Following the debate, the President's advisers hopefully held out the expec-tation that Mr. Carter's evasion of questions would prove to have been the dominant Impression left with the mass television audience.

That impression mey have been a servey station jarring in the theater than it was ---a TV screen where a viewer is a street where easily carried along by a flow of the street the carried along the challenger. "Fiesta in Tlacotalpan," another premiere, is more true to Folklorico form. It is a joyful suite of dances built around a carnival celebration in Vera Cruz. Choreographically, the accent is on stamping heetwork for both the meo and women, performed with exciting precision aton a platform precision atop a platform.

In this vein the dances to two older pieces, "Zacatecas," with its larlat-twirling cowboy and his sweetheart, and "Jetisco," which includes the "Hat Dance," are also to be highly recommended

The third premiere, "Los Totonacas," a modern reconstruction of ceremonies by some pre-Hispanic suo worshippers, however, came off very poorly—espe-cially when compared to numbers based on extant Indian dances, such as the always exciting "Deer Dance" and "Los Matachines."

Fighting Mad' Is Showing at Neighborhood Theaters

Given a determined effort at selfdelusion, it is possible to believe that "Fighting Mad," which opened Friday at neighborhood theaters, is just another good guys versus bad guys movie. The bad guys in this case are a strip miner-land developer, his heochmen, corrupt politicians and inertiaridden policemen, and the good guys are the sort of farm folk that we know are determined to cleave to their land because they have the sort of faces that made nimble the brush hands of Grant Wood and Norman

The truth is that "Fighting Mad," starring Peter Fonda, ils a little less starring Peter Fonda, 115 a little less than just another good guys versus bad guys movie. The holes in its story line occasionally yawn wide enough to admit six abreast the bulldozers that evil, murderous Crahtree is using in the strip-mining and land-development schemes that are consuming and meo-acing the farmers' land.

This right not seem so unusual. Korvettes has had a policy in recent years of trying to lend its classical-record division a certain snazzy class hy inviting superstars to similar promotional galas.

Such classical stars as Renata most of his promotional predecesaors have been singers. Second, he is a notoriously reclusive man, whose appearance at Korvettes seemed about as unexpected as Greta Garbo's might have been.

It was Jack Pfeiffer, executive producer of RCA's classical labels, who persuaded Mr. Horowitz to appear at Korvettes, and up until the last moment he was confident that his star would show. "He likes to kid me about it, calling me up and saying he won't come." Mr. Pfeiffer said on Thursday. "He did that just now. But be will."

A few minutes before the eveot, another 'RCA official wasn't so sure. "I wouldn't be shocked if he didn't show," the official said, staring out nervously at the patiently waiting line of fans, which

First of all, he is a planist, and most of his promotional predecesant have been singers. Second he been to concerts where he didn't."

As it happened, Mr. Horowitz was more concerned about whether any fans would show up and whether his own appearance would be misconstrued as publicity-seeking than about the actual ordeal, which proceeded in a smooth and orderly fashion until 6 P.M.

"I hope it will not rain," he fretted Thursday night. And in fact, at 4 P.M. precisely yesterday, just as Mr. Horowitz was entering the store, the heavens opened. It didn't seem to discourage the fans, however, most of whom were eager to point out to questioners that they weren't so much auto-graph-hunters as Horowitz admirers. "To me, be's the best pianist in the world today," was a typical remark.

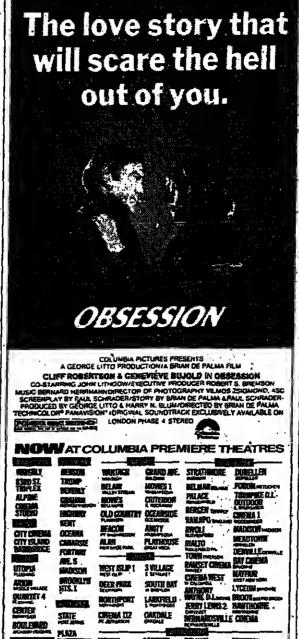

"Is a kind of injection or stim-ulation of instrumental music in general." Mr. Horowitz explained general," Mr. norowate and "Be-in his thick Russian accent. "Believe me, I don't need the pro-motion for myself." Several times during the Korvettes session he leaned back to a reporter, seeking assurances that it was all right to

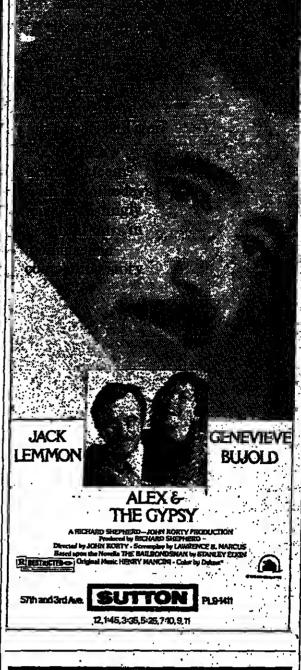

No Water

At the outset Mr. Horowitz was visibly nervous—about the televi-sion microphones thrust into his face, about the hot television lights, about the sound of bis latest record playing tinoily in the background and about the lack of basic amenities. "Wanda, Wanda, Wanda," he called worriedly to his wife. "We didn't bring the water."

But things soon settled into a businesslike routine, and Mr. Horowitz's mood was eased by the pres-ence of friends near the head of the ing actor, was there, and so were David Rubin and Franz Mohr. Mr. Rubin is manager of the concert artists division at Steloway and Mr. Mohr is Steinway's chief tuner. Both men assured Mr. Horowitz that they were getting his plano into perfect shape for his forth-coming tour, and that seemed to make him as happy as anything

"You see, I don't play in New York again until January 1978, the 50th anniversary of my New York debut," the pianist said. "So I thought the public could this way see that I am in good health and good shape."

At subsequent concerts, the performers will include Charles Mingus, the jazz bassist; Josh White Jr., the folk and blues sioger; Mary Travers, the Mary of Peter, Paul and Mary, and the Aeolian Players, a chamber group, playing George Crumb's "The World of the Whele" Voice of the Whale."

"The idea is to introduce kids to fine music they would oot otherwise hear," said Lola Cher-son, producer of the series, who became conscious of this culture gap when friends came to New York with children who were 12 or 13. "I checked listings in The Times, in New York magazine and The Village Voice and found there was nothing for children above the age of 8 or 9. And there was no music offered, other than an occasional Tubby the Tuba."

'Not Many Enjoyed 'Nutcracker'

One of the few events she found that was plaoned for the 10- to-14 age level was "The Nutcracker" ballet. But a story io The Times, interviewing children during an in-termission of "Nutcracker," indicated that many of the childreo, particularly the boys, were not enjoying it very much.

"If music is the universal language," Miss Cherson reflected, "why can't a 12-year-old enjoy Earl Hines or Charles Mingus? The way things are now, kids who are too young for evening coocerts or night clubs have no chance of see-ing these artists. You don't become a jazz fan at 37. You have to be-introduced to the music." So Miss Cherson, who had been publicity director of Seventeen magazine, began planning her Sat-

this social fantasy is counterpointed beautifully by a camera that becomes lyrical: focusing on a full moon wrinkled by chimney smoke, or showing the security guards drilling on the beach at dawn and lit up in profile like a line of long-legged wading-birds. The barshness is redeemed even more by the character of Ferdinaod himself, memorably played by Heinz Schubert, He is a small man who sometimes totters under the weight of his big mission. He is food of cake and his blonde taxidriving girlfriend, Gertie. They celebrate birthdays at midnight feast in cheap restaurants, and go on a winter trailer trip to practice for Christmas.

"Christmas needs training or it won't work," Rieche says. He is something like Chaplin; something like Hitler played by Chaplin. The combination is unforgettable.

> "I dido't want any rock groups," she explained, "because I don't like them, and parents, who are the ones making the decisions, wouldn't pay 10 cents to see a rock concert. I decided to have two kinds of music at each concert, so if a kid doesn't like one half, the other half will be different."

Because she planned to give the audiences a chance to ask questions, and because she felt it was presumptuous to assume that an li-year-old would know who Mr. Mingus is, or would be familiar with Mr. Hines's history, she wanta host or hostess to introduce the performers and conduct the ques-

But-and here Mr. Levine differed from so many of his contemporariesthere was a good deal of relaxation in rhythm. The conductor did not grimly set a tempo and hold on to it for dear life. He understood the kind of fluctuation that Mahler himself, one of the freest conductors who ever lived must have brought to his music.

Thus Mr. Levine's interpretation combined presnt-day literalism with a well-controlled Romantic freedom. Naturally he reveled in the big moments of the score. His temperament is naturally ebullient, and he whipped the Philharmonic into some of the biggest series of sonorities that the Mahler Month is going to show.

Miss Blegen was her usual lyric self, singing with an adorable simplicity. Usually a mezzo-soprano is heard io the finale of the Fourth Symphony, and it is true that Miss Blegen had some trouble with the now notes of ber solo. Everywhere else she sang

AIRBORNE ASSAULT: A plane hired by cadets at the Air Force Academy dropping "Beat Navy" leaflets on Annapolis yesterday. Either a faulty bomb sight or a heavy wind caused most of the propaganda to land away from the midshipmen. The two football teams will meet in Colorado today.

Army, Penn State Typify a Season of Surpris

The college football season has apparently been dedicated to the principle that the mighty will eventually get their come-uppance. Never have so many big ones of the recent past been felled by so many of the formerly downtrodden teams.

Alabama, Ohio State, Arizona State, Nebraska, Southern California, Arkansas, Texas and Notre Dame are examples of those who have falled to avoid shocking setbacks. In some cases it hasn't been just an isolated upset but rather a rash of defeats.

Noturally, there are teams making comebacks and thus filling in the gaps left by the fallen heroes. Boston College, Missouri, Brigham Young, Columbia, Rutgers, Houston, Georgia are among those trying for unexpectedly successful seasons.

Who Would Have Thought?

So it is fitting that on this fifth hig Saturday of the worm-turning season that two of the most surprising teams meet to see if the topsy-turvy year is really all mixed up. These two are Penn State and Army, who play at University Park, Pa. Five weeks ago, a dollar might have won thousands if a person bet Penn State would be 1-3 won-lost and Army 3-1 when they met.
But there it is, the Nittany Lions with a kick for the first time in years. Still, the pick is Penn State. Maybethat is just because everything is so difficult to believe this season.

· It is also hard to believe the short memories of those who forget the glory of the recent past and complain about today's failures. Some of these fans also forget the horrors of the past when a team is suddenly and surprisingly successful. Still harder to believe, however, is the short memory of a coach. 'Steve Who?'

Joe Paterno, Penn State's coach who can regale an after-dinner audience wonderful tales of yore, was asked to compare Army's quarterback, Leamon Hall, with Steve Lindell.

Paterno said, "Steve who?"
"Steve Lindell, coach."
"I don't know," Paterno said.

"You know Lindell He's the last Army quarterback who beat Penn

"Ob." That was in 1966, Paterno's first year as Penn State's head coach, when Lindell, a mere sophomore, led the Cadets to an 11-0 victory over the Nittany Lions, It made the season for Army. Two years later, in Penn State's first unbeaten season under Paterno Lindell unbeaten season under Paterno, Lindell and his receiver, Gary Steele, nearly without claws against an Army mule pulled it out against a powerful Penn State team, eventually losing, 28-24. That was Penn State's closest victory in an 11-0 year.

Now Leamon Hall and his receiver, Clennie Brundidge, get a chance to see what they can do. Hall is a much bigger man than Lindell and a better passer. Lindell was a good runner, good passer and fine team leader. Hall is also an excellent field general,

Army's record is a bit deceptive because Hall has pulled two games out of the fire in the last few seconds. Just how long can he keep doing that? Yet, each time he does, he and his teamgain confidence that they can s up. Penn State and other op have to fear the late aerial threa Penn State's record is als

Florida State had its allotment of one victory for the year last week. Terriers have runner, Mike Morrison, but hands full with Mioutemen. Brown can probably put ootch oo its Ivy League gun in title chase. Should be a good battle of Pennsylvania Division II teams in Lewisburg. Colgate opened very Impressively under direction of Coath Fred Dunian. Itm Kukacki and Harvard should manage this Ivy game rather easily. If Leamoo Hall and the Cedets can pull this off they will be for real. Pitt's Tony Dorsett is right oo schedule for setting career rush record. It's so had for these that Orange and Green appear to be black and bloe. Mountaineers will settle for an Owl after baving hoped for higger game. after having boped for higger game. Yale against leam that is third in nation in defense against scoring. FAR WEST

COMMENT

This Lion could be dominant feline in a struggle of Tigers and Lions. Joo Allen, in second year as Kean coach, has Squires off to s good start. Central Conn.'s wishbone attack is averaging 278 yards rushing per game. C. W. Post leads national poli of Division III teams and Lambert Bowl. Rutgers beat Navy, which beat Conn., which should not trouble Scarlet. The Rams are strong in runners hut have trouble stopping their opponents. Upsala has given up one touchdown and has registered two shutouts.

The two major academies with worst records begin service round robin. A Western Athletic Conf. game that may not invoice eventual champion. Predictions called for Ariz. St. to be 3-0 by this time so what happened? This one could be what settles the W.A.C. title way this league is now. Callfornia's Joe Roth ranks third in the nation to passing at 74 for 139. the nation io passing at 74 for 139.
Loog Beach State has given up an average of 7.7 points in four games.
Washington handled Minnesota so Beavers should not be too difficult.
Back from meaningless tie with Ohio State, Bruins opeo Pac 8 action.
Ricky Bell and Southern California should have another big day in this.

The most notable thing that is red about the Crimson Tide is their faces. E. Carolina now going for its first undefeated, untied season in 30 years. Bill Battle keeps trying to coach Vols. L.S.U. may have lost chance at S.E.C. title in loss to Florida last week. Two teams of Tigers met only occe before when Auburn Tigers woo in 75. After two straight losses to Big Eight teams, Miami is back in own class. Georgia now looms as the favorite to wio the Southeastern Conference title. S.E.C. game probably woo't have too much to do with the championship. Terrapins can fatten up oo teams like this to get that A.C.C. crown. Gamecocks have been having so-so season but Cavaliers are just losing. Vinces and Vipees are meeting for the 71st time in a footbell game. Deacons may be hattered and bruised from that Michigan thing a week ago. Delaware saved one against a major team last week and wants to try again. Baylor Bears are looking more like they did way back in 1974 season. Cougars have a few teams worried between Red River and the Rio Grande. ABC will squeeze this one in on television between the baseball playoffs. George Woodard of Texas Aggles rushing just under 100 yards o game. Tommy Kramer of Rice leads nation in passing at 24 completions R game.

The Big Eight race could be interesting if Missouri can become consistant. Michigao leads nation in scoring, rush offense, total offense and polls. Minnesota's Golden Gophers lost some of their gikter hy loslog last week. Nolan Cromwell, Kansas's OB, has scored seven touchdowns in '76. Badgers and Boilermakers' present on threat to the Big Ten leaders.

Yankees and Royals Meet Today in Start Of American League's New-Look Playoff

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 8—The Yankees, the glamour team of the American League past, and the Kansas City Royals, the most successful of the American League's expansion clubs, concluded preparations today for tomorrow's start of the league's newlook playoff.

This three-of-five series for the pennant will be different from the first seven because it is the first one in which neither the Oakland A's nor the Baltimore Orioles are playing. Those leams have dominated their respective divisions since 1969, each winning five

The Royals were born in 1969, the first year of divisional play, and they will try to win their first pennant against a team that was a perennial champion until 12 years ago and whose history is flooded with pennants (29) and World Series championships (20), Whitey Herzog, the Kansas City manager, has altered his opening-game lineup in an attempt to overcome the team's late-scason scnring drought. He named Amos Otis to lead off, a position the ceoter fielder said he hadn't been in for four years. One will be followed by George Breit and Hal McRae, the league's top two hitters, and then John Mayberry, the Royals' disappointing No. 1 run producer.

Billy Martin, the Yankee manager seeking his first pennaot in three play-ofts, has named Elliott Maddox to start in right field. Lou Piniella, who was the right fielder against left-handed pitchers during the regular season, will serve as the designated hitter.

Even with his surgical right knee, Maddox gives the Yankees better outfield defense. That's why Martin's decision to play him in right isn't surpris-ing. What is puzzling, though, is why Martin didn't use Maddox more the last week of the season to prepare him for the playoffs.

Herzog would have been bappy to use anyoody in the last weeks of the seasen who could have provided some

"We have to try and gct more runs," the Rolays' manager said, explaining his lineup change. "We have to get more speed up there."

The Royals lost ninc of their last 11 regular-season games and scored a total of only 18 runs in those games. As a result, they struggled to the division title, edging Oakland by 215 games after having held as much as a 12-game lead.

Gura Will Oppose Hunter

Larry Gura, who started only two games this season but who gained the Royals' last two victories—one in re-lief, one as a starter—will puch to: kansas City against Catfish Hunter, an experienced postseason pitcher who struggled himself during the season as the Yankees coasted to their first divi-

"If anything, a rainout would give us a little advantage," suggested Danny Ozark, mananger of the Phillies. "I've got a five-man rotation all ready to go, and we wouldn't be hurt if we lost the off-day Mooday."

"If it rains 10 days," countered Sparky Anderson, manager of the Reds, 'we'll pitch in the same rotation. It would make no difference at all."

Cincinnati's pitching rotation was one of the few mysteries surrounding two teams with plenty of batting mus-cle. That mystery was cleared up just after the Reds flew into town for a 90-minute workout starting at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The Reds have no 20-game winners on their staff; in fact, no 16-game win-ners. And they had been indicating all week that they would "hand the ball "tomorrow to Pat Zachry, the rookle right hander from Texas who won 14 times this summer.

Anderson Plays 'Game'

But then Anderson announced that he had "switched" to Gullett, the 25year-old left-hander from Kentucky who opened the World Series last October. Since then, Gullest has suffered from a pinched nerve in his neck and, though he won 11 games while losing only three, he appeared only 23 times this year. He also declined to sign his 1976 contract, meaning that he will be "free" as soon as the Reds are finished for the season. The issue is not his $60,000 salary but his insistence on a five-year contract.

"Actually, I made up my miod Tuesday to start Gullett." Anderson confessed with a mischievous smile, "I was just

"I wish he could pitch every game, too," Martin said. "If he could, I know we'd win." Billy Martin is talking bravely for a manager who has been a two-time loser in the playoffs. When he was managing the Minnesota Twins in 1969, they lost to the Baltimore Orioles in three straight games. When he was managing the Detroit Tigers in 1972 they lost to the A's lo a decisive fifth

"He nibbles at the plate," Martin says. "In a big game, he'll get too fine and start walking guys." But in his quiet manner, Larry Gura doesn't seem con-cerned about pitching in tomorrow's big game.

game. And now he's risking the embarrassment of a scorned pitcher contribuling to another playoff loss.

"I've been playing baseball 23 years and I've been on 12 championship teams, that's a lot of big games," he says. "I remember when I was pitching in the Little League, on a team called the Caterpillars, my dad promised me a new fishing rod if I shut out the other team, and I shut them out. At the time that was real pressure. And in American Legion ball in Joliet (Ill.), where I grew up, I pitched back-to-back no-hitters with 23 strikeouts in each game. My last year at Arizona State, we had to win the final game to win the college World Series, and I won It. Pressure doesn't bother me. Pressure is when you're not sure you can do something. Like when I play golf, I'm not sure what I'm doing. That's pressure. But in baseball I know what I can do."

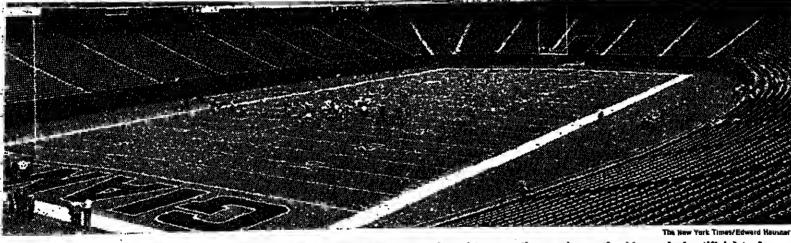

Larry Gura calls himself a "finesse pitcher." and he resents how Billy Martin did not even use him early this sea-

"The first thing in spring training," Gura recalls, "he told me he was going to start me every fourth day but he didn't start me at all in the exhibition games. When the season began, I thought he'd at least use me in long relief, but every time the situation came up. he used Tippy Martinez instead. He didn't use me at all. Finally, after four weeks, he told me on a Friday he was going to start me the following Wednesday, and that Friday night Catfish Hunter got knocked out in the second inning. I thought sure he'd use me in long relief then to get me ready for the start. When he used Martioez instead, I asked him why and he said Tippy needed the work, he hadn't pitched in two weeks. I told him I needed the work too, I hadn't pitched in four weeks. Two days later I was traded." Gura had a 7-8 record with the Yankees in 1975, but he was 5-1 io the last few weeks of the 1974 division duel with

"As a little kid, I always wanted to play for the Yankees," he says. "One time wheo I was with the Cubs, I went to Yankee Stadium just to see it before they rebuilt it. And when they reopened it this year and I was on the team. I had chills going through me. Whitey Ford was my idol and

At least 40 percent of the 78,000 fans expected to attend the home opener between the Giants and the Dallas Cowboys tomorrow have been persuaded to leave their cars at home and use public transportation to the new stadium, according to Alan G. Sagner, the State Transportation Commissioner.

Hoping to avoid a repetition of the traffic jams that marred the opening of harness racing at the Meadowlands race track adjoining the football stadium, New Jersey city and state officials have arranged with 13 bus companies and ConRail for buses and two special Irains to transport fans from parts of New York and New Jersey.

In addition to these efforts, several New Jersey restaurateurs and hotel managers are sponsoring special package deals, which include breakfast, bus transportation to and from the stadium, and perhaps dinner after the game.

Miss Fromholz TopsMrs.King

By FRED TUPPER

PHOENIX, Oct. 8-Billie Jean King was beaten today, just two matches after making her comeback to big-time tournament singles. It was more a massacre in this $75,000 Taley tournament than a match as Dianne Fromholz, the red-haired Australian who turned 20 in August, won, 6-3, 6-2, in 40 minutes. Afterward, the victor declared, "I thought I would win, but I expected it to go three sets with a lot of tough games. Maybe something was wrong with her leg." with her leg.'

Mrs. King came into the press room later. She had not thought she was wanted, she said. "Dianne kept the ball deep and really played too well. If you go on court, you're fit, But I wish I was more fit. I can't seem to get intense. I need to be more emotionalhave some driving motivation. Dennis Leonard and Andy Hassler. However, all three Royals pitched well against the Yankees this season, compiling an aggregate 1.02 earned-run

Relief Pitching—Sparky Lyle pitched infrequently in the last six weeks of the Yankee season but could he used as No. 1 in the playoffs. Dick Tidrow and Grant Jackson were outstanding during Lyle's involuntary exile. Mark Littell carries the hurden for Kansas City, with help from Steve Mingori, and both have been effective.

First Base—Chris Chambliss was a hig run producer for the Yankees throughout the season and won a number of games with his hitting in the first balf. Mayberry was a disappointment in the first year of his five-year, $1 million contract. He enters the playoffs without a hit in his last 18 times at bat against the Yankees. Mayberry has the edge defensively.

Second Base—Randolph filled a need for the Yankees in his first year with them, making many excellent plays in the field. Frank White isn't much of c hitter but has good range in the field.

Third Base—Graig Nottles led the league in home runs and played outstanding defense. Brett, who hits well to all fields, led the league in hitting and played well at third, though his throwing was erratic.

Shortstop - Fred Stanley was a pleasant surprise both offeosively and defensively once he gained the job for himself. Fred Patek covers a lot of ground and is the Royals' top base-

Outfield-The Yankees cover a lot of ground, and Rivers especially cuts off what otherwise would be extra-base hits in the allers. The only drawback is that Rivers, in center, and Roy White, in left, have weak arms. Maddox, who will play right field in the opening game, might not do much hitting, hecause of his relative inactivity this season, but Oscar Gamole, who will play against right-banded pitching, was a significant run producer. Ctis is one of the league's best center fielders. and Al Cowens, who makes use of a strong arm in right, and Tom Po-quette and Jim Wohlford, who will alternate in left, are capabla enough. Offensively, Rivers's hitting and speed set the tone of the Yankee attack, while Otis will be relied on to serve a similar role for the Royals as thair new leadoff

Catcher-Thurman Munson should be the best all-round player on the field. His only weakness is his erratic throwing to second, which the Royals hope to take advantage of. The Yankees, on the other hand, should be cole to run successfully on Buck Martinez and Bob hitting, either, playing games with the Phillies this week. Why Gullett? Because he's been there before. After him, we'll pitch Zachry and then Gary Nolan. You never know, we might not get into the World Series, so they'd better get their turn now.'

His touch of satire was not lost on Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, who watched the free-swinging Reds take batting practice while doing bomework for his role as a broadcaster for the playoff. Seaver, whose team finished third in the East, shook his head and conceded that he was impressed and concened that he was impressed.
"I only wish I were playing," he said with some envy, "look at those guys—Johnny Bench, Pete Rose, George Foster, Joe Morgan. I'll tell you, the way these clubs can hit and the way this artificial turf behaves, you'll get scores of 8-7 and 6-5 here."

Some Powerful Numbers

The Reds were rated slight favorites to win the playoff and thair third pennant in the 1970's. Beyond that, they were trying to become the first National League team to win two world titles in a row since the New York Giants of 1921 and 1922. They roared through the summer with a collective batting average of .280, the best in the big leagues; they stole 210 bases in 266 attempts, they hit 141 home runs, and they won 102 of their 162 games.

But the Phillies captured the Eastern Division with strong credentials, too: a team batting average of 272, third best in the business, and 101 victories. They also had a 20-game winner in Carlton, an 18-game winner in Jim Lonborg (who will pitch the second game) and a bull pen headed by Tug McGraw, the onetime blithe spirit of Position by position, the Reds had more experience as a unit and they had the World Series checks to prove it. But the Phillies went into the playoff with beavy "acquired" experience; their pitchers, for example, had ap-peared in 14 World Series games for other clubs before they were traded to Philadelphia.

At catcher, the Reds were generally presumed to hold the advantage over other teams because of Bench, though he slumped to .234 this summer with only 16 home runs while nursing a sore shoulder. The Phillies were starting with Tim McCarver, once Carlton's teammate on the St. Louis Cardinals and a seasoned player who hit 277 in limited work.

Both infields ranked at the top in Both mileds ranked at the top in defense and power, atarting at first hase. Tony Perez, playing his 13th sea-son and fifth playoff for the Reds, sup-plied 19 home runs and knocked in

91 runs—the 10th straight time he had driven in more than 90 runs in a season. For the Phillies, Dick Allen contributed 15 home runs in 85 games in his 14th season in the major leaguesand also contributed some dissension by playing his traditional role as a

At second base, Joe Morgan again rang bells for the Reds one year after being voted the most valuable player in the league. This summer he hit .320, cleared 27 fences and drove home 111 runs, and also stole 60 bases as one of the game's all-round stars. For the Phillies, Dave Cash batted 284 in 160-games—and, like Gullett of the Reds. and Wayne Twitchell of the Phils, remained unsigned.

At third base; muscle on both sides. For the 11th time in 12 summers, Rose hir better than 300—323, with 215 hits for a career total of 2,762. But Mike Schmidt whacked 38 home runs while leading the majors for the third straight year and batted in 107 runs though he struck out 149 times.

Both shortstops carried outstanding gloves and useful hats, though Dave Concepcion generated more power for Cincinnati with nine home runs, 69

He also stole 21 bases. Larry of the Phillies averaged 248 switch-hitter, knocked in 49 m stole 30 bases in 37 attempts

In the outfield, head-kg worked for each club. George matured into a hero for the Reglittering statistics: a 306 averhome runs and 121 runs had Cesar Geronimo, in center, higstole 22 bases while maintain rank as one of the game's best and throwers. And Ken Griffished at 336, knocked in 74 at swiped 34 bases.

For the Phillies, the muscle left field was Greg Luzinshi 304 with 21 home runs and of in, though he played only occa-since August because of a chr sore right knee. In center, Gardox has been taking cortison ments for his injured left wr he still hit 330 with 68 runs io and 29 stolen bases. And field. Ollie Brown platoons aga handed pitchers with a 2 4 while Jay Johnstone goes again handers with a 318 average said Orr after his first regular-season game Thursday in which Chicago beat St. Louis, 6-4. Orr scored one good and had two assists. He was on the ice for all six Chicago goals, four of which came on power plays.

"I'm not kidding myself about being in prime condition," said the 28-yearold defenseman, "Exhibition games aren't enough wheo you've been out as long as I have. It will take time."

Orr's last regular-season game had been Nov. 26, 1975, when he was with the Boston Bruins. Last month he played in seven games for Team Canada in the Canada Cup international hockey tournament.

Bryan Trottier, the 20-year-old Islander center who was rookie of the year last season, was not expected to rejoin the Islanders' lineup for another week. He suffered a sprained right knee 10 days ago in an exhibition game with Philadelphia. Bob Bourne took his place on a line with Billy Harris and Clark Gillies Thursday night as the Islanders began their fifth season with a 3-0 victory over the Fly-ers io the Philadelphia Spectrum.

Wilson Sent to Peoguins

The New York Raogers sent Dunc Wilson, a 28-year-old goaltender, to the Pittsburgh Penguins yesterday for cash and future considerations. The Rangers now have two goaltenders, John David-son and Gilles Gratton. The Penguins were in dire need of goaltending help after Denis Herron, newly acquired as a free agent from Colorado, fractured his left arm in the season opener on Wednesday. The Rangers acquired Wilson on waivers from Toronto in February 1975. He played 20 games for them last season, compiling a 4.22 goals-

Miss Evert Easy Victor

Top-seeded Chris Evert loafed through a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Terry Holladay of La Jolla Calif., who once had the impudence to beat her in World Team Tennis.

"She's either on or off," said Miss Evert. "Today, off. She tried everything, nothing worked. My serve was quite good and I returned well."

Nineteen-year-old Martina Navratilova, woefully off form lately, staged lova, woetuny oir form lately, staged a late rally whenthe match was slipping away to beat Mona Guerrant, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, and reach the last four.

THE ROAD CAR. COMPARE IT!

To find out just how good a road car Saab really is, we decided to have an independent testing company compare it with what we thought was the loughest competition around: a BMW 2002.

They ran both cars through a series of performance tests designed to measure those characteristics that make a car a true road car: a skid pad test to measure G-Force in cornering, a sialom course for handling, and, of course, acceleration and braking tests.

The results confirmed what we expected. As the chart shows, the Saab and BMW 2002 are quite a match. The Saab was at least an equal in every category. We weren't surprised, but a number of BMW owners

However, don't just take our word for it. There's only one way to find out how good a car really is. Drive it. We did. And look at what happened.

Quick Pay Ends Steve Lobell's Triple Crown Bid

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 8 - Quick Pay, who had spent most of this season losing close finishes, won a pair of tight ones today and captured the $100,000 Kentucky Futurity. His victory ruined his stablemate Steve Lobell's hid for trotting's triple crown.

Driven by 22-year-old Peter Haughton, Quick Pay won the second and third heats on the wet and sticky clay of Lexington's Big Red Mile by frantic margins of a nose and a neck over Steve Lobell, driven by Peter's father,

Steve Lobell, winner of the Yonkers Futurity and the four-heat Hambietonian that left him prostrate with heat stroke, was generally considered the first-string 3-year-old trotter in the 200-horse Haughton outfit. "But Quick Pay won't be a big surprise if he wins," Peter warned before the race. "He's due for some good luck, and I'd feel pretty confident if I didn't have the eighth post position.' That post proved a handicap in the opening heat. The track crew had labored feverishly to make the damp etrip usable, but deep ruts remained on the outside on the turns, so Peter could not gun Quick Pay to the front where the colt prefers to be. Instead, young Haughton found himself sitting

"Just after the half-mile," recalled Miller, "I called to Billy, Don't go away, wait for me.'" Haughton did just that, preserving Steve Lobell in a slow third quarter. As a result, when Quick Pay and the others made their charges, Steve Lobell and Soothsayer had plenty left. Only one thing went wrong with the elder Haughton's strategy. As both colts faltered and tried to break stride, it was Soothsayer who beat Steve Lobell by a nose and paid a shocking $122:

Final Heat Is Faster .

Quick Pay had come up empty in the stretch, but his third-place finish gave him an inside post and a chance to change tactics. "He's always been better on the front end," said his trainer Charlie Jenkins, "and that's where he'll be this time." "I don't care how fast I have to go or whom I have to hang up on the outside," agreed Peter. "I'm holding the lead as far as I can." As it developed, he didn't have to go very fast. After a moderate 1:00 half, he prepared to meet the challenge of Steve Lobell. The Haughtons and their colts battled the

ing forward from the Portland Trail Blazers a few weeks ago, canceled the deal. New Orleans had the option to back out by tomorrow if it failed to out a five-minute inspection of the photo before Peter knew he was the winner.

The third heat was only slightly less suspenseful. Quick Pay led through a livelier 59-second half; in the stretch he found Soothsayer rushing up outside him and Steve Lobell closing ground on the rail. "Did you have to cut off your own old man?" Peter was asked moments later.

"Naw," he said with the aplomb of a herness veteran. "I was thinking about shutting the hole, but then he didn't have enough trot to catch me anyway.

Quick Pay prevailed by a neck over Steve Lobell. The entry's 1-2 finishes allowed bettors to relax wiste collecting $3.20 and then $3.00 win mutuels. But the father-son drame, brightened

In terms of pure speed, the Futurity was easily eclipsed by the companion race for 3-year-old pacers, the $52,535 Tattersalls. This years trotting crop may be just everage, but the pacers are perhaps the greatest group ever. The best of the Grand Circuit troupe, Stanley Dancer's Keystone Ore, won straight heats in the Tattersalls, But to do it, he had to pace miles in 1:55 2-5 and 1:56 3-5 on the dead track in order to best Haughton's brillians Windshield Wiper.

In fact, Keystone Ore's final quarter in 264/5 seconds seemed to propel him directly toward his showdown with New York-bred Oil Burner in the James B. Dancer Memorial next Saturday at

Small but Select Field for Ruffian Headed by Proud Delta, Revidere

By STEVE CADY

Rain or no rain, Proud Delta probably will go to the post at Belmont Park today in the first running of the $132,-375 Ruffian Stakes. According to Peter Howe, her trainer, the 4-year-old filly "just doesn't like mnd." On that kind of track, Proud Delta feels insecure. But Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott, in whose Montpeller colors the filly races, apparently has decided the ill-fated Ruffian deserves the best memorial salute possible.

"I talked to Mrs. Scott," Howe said yesterday, "and she thinks it might be unsporting to pull out of the race with such a short field."

Revidere Is 8-5 Favorite

So Proud Delta probably will run in the weight-for-age event of 11/4 miles, despite a weather forecast that calls for rain. Only four others are entered in the test for fillies and mares, but the small field represents so much quality that two divisional championships could be decided.

Thoroughbred racing's two best 3year-old fillies, Revidere and Optimistic Gal, are back to challenge Proud Delta again and, in the process, settle their battle for the divisional championship. In two previous meetings, Revidere finished ahead of Optimistic Gal hy a narrow margin each time.

On the overnight line, Revidere was listed as an 8-5 favorite. Proud Delta, in line to become the season's champion older filly or mare, was rated at 2-1, with Optimistic Gal and Bastonera II, a 5-year-old mare, each at 3-1. Garden Verse, a 4-year-old, completes the field.

It's hard to see how management could have assembled a stronger field. for this first competitive tribute to Ruffian, the remarkable 3-year-old filly who was buried in the Belmont Park infield a year ago last July after shattering her leg in a match race against Foolish Pleasure.

Last Saturday, it was Forego winning the Marlboro Cup at Belmont and nailing down his third straight Horse-ofthe-Year title. Today, Belmont's role as the anvil on which champions are forged will continue with the nationally televised Ruffian.

Except for the added distance, the Ruffian offers a virtual rerun of the weight-for-age Beldame two weeks ago, when Proud Delta scored by three lengths with a front-running effort. Revidere was second, Bastonera finished third and Optimistic Gal faded to fourth in that one, at 11/2 miles. For Revidere, ridden hy Willie Shoemaker, the defeat was the first in an eight-race career.

Jacinto Vasquez, the regular jockey for William Haggin Perry's filly, will ride her today. Jorge Velasquez rides Proud Delta, Eddje Maple will steer Op-timistic Gal, owned by Mrs. Bertram Firestone, and Angel Cordero has the mount on Bastonera II.

ESQUIRE IS REBUTTING ARTICLE IT PUBLISHED

Threat of Suit Over a 1975 Attack on Richard Goodwin Leads to Settlement, and New Dispute

By DEIRDRE CARMOOY

In its November issue last year, Esquire magazine published a profile of Richard N. Goodwin, author and former Presidential aide, entitled "The Second Tricky Dick." Mr. Goodwin threatened to sue, and as part of the subsequent out-ofcourt settlement, Esquire will print an unusual rebuttal by the late founding edi-tor Arnold Gingrich in its forthcoming a good deal about the writing of GWTW and of the inordinate demands that fame made upon its author. Right up to the end, she is worrying about royalty problems with foreign publishers. She and Mr. Marsh seem to have handled husioess matters themselves, for she mentions in one letter that she no longer has a literary agent and is dealing with foreign publishers directly—no amall matter since the book has appeared in 37 countries, many of which, in Miss Mitchell's day, did not honor Uoited States copyrights. But the matter has not ended there The rebutted, which is unusual because it falls just short of actually rebutting the original piece, has spawned its own controversy—and, in fact, its own rebut-tal. Esquire will not print the rebuttal of the rebuttal, which was written by a senior editor Nora Epbron, for her regu-lar media column, because it says the Ephron rebuttal cannot in turn be rebutted by Mr. Gingrich, who died this sum

> All parties agree that the controversy involves principle—they simply do oot agree on what that principle is. It is this ery disagreement that affords a glimpse of what can happen at a magazine when husiness interests and journalistic princi-ples come into conflict. It is of particular interest at Esquire, which bas a loog tradition of non-involvement by the busi-tradition of non-involvement by the business side in what are generally considered editorial affairs.

It all began with the publication of the long profile by a freekance writer, Bo Burlingham, which depicted Mr. Goodwin as having achieved success because of his ability to manipulate people and situations. At the time of the article, Mr. Goodwin and Doris H. Kearns, the Har-Goodwin and Doris H. Kearns, the Harvard professor he later married, were receiving a great deal of publicity because of their proposed collaboration on a biog rapby of former President Lyndon B

Mr. Goodwin then retained James St Clair, former counsel to President Richard M. Nixon, and threatened suit. Subsequently Mr. Goodwin, Miss Kearns, Abo L. Blinder, who is president of Esquire magazines parent company, Esquire Inc. and Arnold Gingrich, then editor-in-chief, met for lunch to discuss matters. Discus sions dragged on through the winter months and finely an out-of-court settle ment for $12,500 was reached, including a provision that Mr. Gingrich would pub-licly take Issue in his monthly column with the original article.

Mr. Gingrich was dying of cancer, and Don Erickson, the magazine's editor, in-terviewed him at his bedside. The column that will appear in November is signed irely of quotations from Mr. Gingrich who called the Esquire portrait of Mr. Goodwin "sufficiently at odds with the man himself that a reappraisal seems to

Stayman Convention Puts Burdens on the Responder

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

Exaggerated importance is given by some players to the following question:
If the opener has two four-card majors, which suit should he hid after a Staymen response to his one on-trump?

Some think spades. Others think hearts. A third alternative perhaps best, is to bid the stronger of the two suits. But it is a trivial point, and there is a lot to be said for having no agreement at all, since the gain to the part-nership is often outweighed by the loss in terms of information given to the opponents.

The advantage of bidding the stronger suit in this situation is illustrated by the diagramed deal from a recent Swiss team championship in Philadelphia. It was noted by Dave Treadwell of Wilmington, Del., long one of the topranked players on the East Coast. Once North had opened one notrump, the weak variety, South's slam

Luckily for Treadwell, South's play was not as effective as his bldding. He ruffed the opening diamond lead, drew trumps, and led a low heart from his

However, East won and returned a diamond. South had no way to avoid the

New York's P.B.A. vs. the People

The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association during the past two weeks has subjected New York to the most serious challenge to the city's survival that municipal officials have faced since the fiscal crisis began two years ago. The danger is twofold.

In demanding pay benefits and working conditions that exceed guidelines laid down by the Emergency Financial Control Board and accepted by other municipal unions, the P.B.A. threatens to undermine the city's already precarious effort to balance its budget and regain access to the credit market. If Mayor Beame should yield to the policemen's demand for special treatment, his fragile agreement with other unions would collapse, the hudget would be thrown once more hopelessly out of balance, and Federal sld, which is tied to strict budgetary disciplines, would cease. New York would be plunged into bankruptcy.

That is a prospect that no thoughtful New Yorkers, especially those who rely on the city directly for their livelihood; can contemplate without profound concern. But the manner in which some members of the P.B.A. have pressed their unreasonable demands poses an even of the city, in defiance of court orders and of the orders of their superiors; by standing idly by while young hoodlums attacked and robbed innocent citizens; by resisting arrest and even attacking arresting officers when such could be found with the courage and integrity to attempt to control them-members of the P.B.A. have openly subverted the lsw that is the cement of civic

There can he no security for any citizen when lawenforcers put themselves above the law. Society is threatened when unruly mobs of off-duty policemen openly grapple in the streets with their uniformed superiors, a chilling spectacle that has been witnessed by thousands of New Yorkers in recent days at Yankee Stadium, at Madison Square Garden, in Times Square and elsewhere. While standing firm on the fundamentals of their original contract offer, city officials must take swift and decisive action against policemen who have violated their trust. ## Polarization in Spain

The 5,000 rightists who in a Madrid manifestation this week demanded the ouster of the Government and military rule in Spain have dramatized the intractable political problem confronting King Juan, Carlos and Prime Minister Adolfo Suárez González.

The King and his Prime Minister are trying to move Spain gradually out of the suthoritarian straitjacket, fashioned by the late Generalissimo Franco, toward a Western European parliamentary democracy-but are evoking the hostility of both left and right.

To make their protest against democratization, the right-wing militants exploited the funerals of two policemen who were gunned down in San Sebastlan Monday with three other men-including a top-level adviser to the King-by Basque separatists. The most prominent victim was Juan Maria de Araluce, a member of the Council of the Realm, Spsin's highest advisory body.

Almost every political force in Spain, including the Communists, condemned the San Sebastian murders. But diebard Francoists tried to turn the indignation into an argument for preserving suthoritarian rule and junking the Government's program, which calls for elections by next June for a new two-chamber Parliament. In particular, the Francoists oppose restoration of the regional sutonomy exercised by the Basques and Catalans prior to. General Franco's victory in the Civil War of 1936-39.

Many Spaniards believe that only the restoration of regional autonomy can defeat the separatist movements and isolate the terrorists. But, fearful of provoking strong reaction from rightist politicians and conservative military officers, the Government has decided to delay decisions on regional autonomy and on another major emotional issue, the legalization of the Communist Party, until the elected Parliament can deal with these questions next year.

It is the Government's caution about dismantling Francoist institutions and practices that has led a wide spectrum of political parties to withhold their support. These grups, ranging from moderate conservative to Communist, demand immediate freedom for all parties, including the Communists. The formation of a broadly based provisional government and the prompt preparation of free elections for an assembly that would write a new

The transition from authoritarian to democratic rule is never easy to manage; and the hazards involved in the . political balancing set undertaken by King and Prime Minister should not be underestimated. In the vacuum left by General Franco's passing, bowever, the greater risk is that of moving too slowly, giving the diehards the opportunity to polarize the country and to dig io behind a discredited system that Spain must shuck off in order to assume the place waiting for it inside the European Community.

Goring Oxen

The State Board of Elections will soon decide whether the petitions filed in behalf of former Senator Eugene J. McCarthy actually contain the 20,000 valid signatures required to place his name on New York's Presidential ballot in November. The McCarthy petitions were challenged by the local Democratic organization io a desperate effort to ferret out signatures which might be invalid.

While legalistically and technically there is no ground for objection to any attempt to require a candidate to adhere to the precise letter of our complex election laws, the fact is that that's not the normal custom in this state, Indeed, the current effort of the Democratic Party to keep Mr. McCarthy's name off the ballot would not be made if he were not considered a threat to Mr. Carter in New York; and in fact it carries with it a rich aura

Just seven months ago, representatives of candidates in the Democratic Presidential primary were screaming foul at the top of their lungs when Senator Henry Jackson's forces engaged in a similar effort to flyspeck petition signatures. None howled so loudly on principle as the local representatives of Jimmy Carter, in whose behalf the current effort to force Mr. McCarthy off the ballot is being made. Times do change and apparently principles do too.

The Cost of Polluting

Federal District Judge Robert R. Mehrige Jr. in Richmond laid it on the line for all polluters by levying a $13,375,000 fine on the Allied Chemical Company for knowingly dumping Kepone-laden water and other chemicals into the James River. In explaining his reasons for imposing such a sentence, Judge Mehrige pointed out: "The environment helongs to every citizen from the highest to the lowest." He made clear the effect he wanted his sentence to have: "I hope, after this sentence. that every corporate employee who has any reason to believe that pollution is going on will say to himself, I'd better do something about this if I want to keep my company, if I want to keep my job." That, in our book, is a pretty fair way of making sure that the law is effective and that the environment is indeed saved for everyone, both high and low.

The Incredible Cockpit of Lebanon

Still another try to hring peace to Lebanon is scheduled to be made today at a conference in the resort town of Chtaura, where President Elias Sarkis was inaugurated more than two weeks ago.

There have been so many unsuccessful efforts to end the bloody Lebanese struggle this past year and a half that it is hard to rouse much optimism over today's ettempt. The hitterness among the contending factionsand groups has been exacerbated by 18 months of slaughter, while the military and political events of this period have brought so many changes that it is barder than ever to cooceive of Lebanoo being restored even to its former state of superficial unity.

Great as the human and economic losses have been. they are exceeded by the total disappearance of any mutual trust among the various competing Lebanese factions-formed on religious, economic and political lines-and the two major outside forces, the Syrian Army, which oow controls much of the Lebanese countryside, and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Nevertheless today's Chtaura conference cannot be written off in advance as entirely hopeless because there are powerful forces exerting pressure for a cease-fire. One such force is the fear that the present Lebanese struggle could explode into a general Middle Eastern war.

It is now estimated that about 4,000 lragis have arrived in Lebanon to fight on the side of the P.L.O. and the leftist Moslem Lebanese. In southern Lebanon, Israel is in process of creating a kind of mini-protectorate based on Israel's ability to provide the inhabitants with jobs, essential supplies and medical care, and also to supply the needs of a Lehanese Christian militia, which now in effect controls much of this border territory. De facto, there exists a mind-boggling alliance of Syria (which is now closely linked with Jordan), the Lebanese Christians and even some Lebanese Moslems and Israel!

Precisely because of this situation the Syrian leaders find themselves under increasing pressure from Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Libya and other Arab countries to halt their military activities in Lehanon short of either complete destruction of the P.L.O. forces there or of complete. Syrian cootrol of Lebanon. The recent Saudi decisioo to pull that country's troops out of the Golan Heights was one public indication of the pressures on Damsscus. Within Syria itself there is concern over the human and economic cost of the adventure in Lebanon. The Soviet Union, provider of so much of Syria's arms, has made unmistakable its displeasure with the Syrian course.

In this complex situation, the key is probably held by the leaders of the weakened P.L.O. Are they willing to acknowledge their military defeat in Lebanon and to live with the consequences, i.e., acceptance of the 1969 Cairo agreements which require that P.L.O. units be confined to camps, and thus lose the complete freedom of action they have sought to obtain? Success or failure et Chtaura today depends on the conclusions Yasir Arafat and his colleagues have drawn from the worst reverses they have suffered ..... with onsted from Jordan in 1970-71.

Of Carter, McCarthy and the Liberals

To the Editor:

I am dismayed at the self-indulgent attitude of the middle-class liberal who has decided to vote for Eugene McCarthy or to abstain from voting completely because Mr. Carter does not have the articulation and presence of an Adlai Stevenson or John Ken-

Last week a poor woman stepped onto the Madison Avenue bus in tears because she had just taken her two children to a day-care center which had just closed. She had a job, but was in despair because there was no one to care for the children. That woman needs the vote of every person in this country who talks about social justice and a commitment to a decent life for everyone. It is parcissistic for the comfortable liberal to disdain the present political scene when there are millions of people who need the help of a President who will not veto every single piece of social legislation. Careful attention should be given to the running mates, Mr. Mondale and Mr. Dole. Mr. Mondale has been vitally involved in urban problems. Mr. Dole has oever shown a scintilla of sensitivity to the problems of those whose daily lives are affected by the man at the top. Which of these men, if need be, should succeed to the

'Mindless Imperatives' To the Editor.

I have been deeply encouraged by your recent editorials on atomic energy in general and plutopilum in particular. The recent action of the British Government and the firm stand taken by Governor Carter give some grounds for hope that we will avoid putting the species Homo saplens into the category of extinction.

Plutonium was indeed well named after the Lord of the Uoderworld. Its half-life of 24,000 years comfortably covers far more than the recorded history of man; its toxic and carcinogenic qualities are truly staggering. Wheo one recalls that only a few years 8go "responsible" government agencies were discussing the existence, on line by the year 2020, of some 700 breeder reactors and associated fuel recycling plants and all the nightmare that goes with it, one can only pray that we will get some leadership in Washington that will be able to say "no" to the mindless imperatives of the: nuclear technocrats.

JAMES O. WADE New York, Sept. 28, 1976

"Voltaire Would Vote"

To the Editor: .Howard Singer (Op-Ed Sept. 28) chooses to sit out this election and cultivate his own garden. Voltaire, however, who coined that memorable metaphor for dropping out, would not approve. In an age of religious wars, superstition and absolute rule. Voltaire stood up for peace, tolerance, science and freedom of expression. In the age of Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, Voltaire would do no less. Faced with the elections of 1976, he provided with fair coverage. Never theless, there is still a fighting chance to win in November: He will be on the ballot in at least 35 to 40 states. Thus, 40 percent of voters regis-tered unaffiliated, 50 percent or more currently with no intention of voting and scores of disenchanted destined to vote for the lesser of two evils again can buck the structured and unresponsive two-party system with an exceptional third choice to be proud of.

Buckley 'Demagoguery'

To the Editor: Senator James L. Buckley's Syracuse statement that U.S. Supreme Court decisions barring most public tax assistance to perochial schools constituted "religious repression," as reported in the Sept. 25 Times, is demagoguery which cries out for re-

Even allowing for the expected extravagances of pobtical candidates in a tight race, this distortion of truth cannot be permitted to stand. The establishment clause of the First Amendment to our Constitution guarantees "the free exercise" of religion in the U.S.—certainly the opposite of "repression." It is this identical clause which the Court cites continually in rejecting attempts to appropriate public funds to support parochial schools.

Would Senator Buckley have it both ways? Would he endorse the establishment clause to protect freedom of religion, but then reject it to obtain tax dollars for religious-dominated schools? Everyone interested in edocatioo is aware of the budget squeeze. among private institutions, whether religious or secular. But the desperate need of the public school system for every steadily shrinking tax dollarused to educate all children, available for and guaranteed to children of every race and creed-should not, may not, be ignored. ## Noise: The Ignored Pollution.

"the nation was spending $34.8 billion for pollution controls this year" and that "78 percent is going to abatement of air and water pollution, 15 percent to deal with solid waste and 7 percent for such activities as edministration and research."

This adds up to 100 percent. Therefore zero percent is being spent to combat noise pollution, recognized to be a form of air pollution and also known as ear pollution. This despite the following:

(1) What has been justly called a pet explosion has had as sequelae an explosion of noise on the eardrum by barking dogs and an explosion of suddealy elevated blood pressure and fright on the part of children and edults as well. Police couldn't be more contemptuous than they are of complaints about maddeningly long spells of barking by dogs at all hours.

(2) Automobile exhaust mufflers are fast becoming a vanishing species. More and more cars, particularly the imports, sound like the muffler-less trucks used as fire engines.

(3) The Federal Aviation Administration assured me, and no doubt many The Times reported on Oct. I that others, as much as sixteen years ago thet it was working diligently on the problem of noisy airplanes and helicopters, but we now have more and noisier aircraft.

> (4) The Federal Environmental Protection Administration was created, in part ut least, to combat aircraft ooise because it was obvious that the F.A.A. was not sincere about its promises to bring relief vs. what various newspaper editorials have called ear-shattering, eardrum-battering, mind-bending aircraft noise. The E.P.A. has "responded" hy giving us the supernoisy supersonic plane.

> (5) Many, many other sources of high-volume preventable noise.

The deleterious effects on both physical and mental bealth of noise pollution are many and well-documented. They can be characterized as dismaying and depressing in number and intensity. The agency the news article reported oo is called the Council on Environmental Quality. Shouldn't the name end with Ignoring Noise Pollution?

Radicals, It Is Argued, Are Alive and Well...

By David Dellinger

When my colleague Tom Hayden ran for the Democratic nomination lor Senete in Calilornia this year, his olficial campeign biography stated:

"Tom Hayden has accomplished more out of office than most elected officials have after a liletime in office." If one egrees with this eppraisal, as do, a natural question to ask is, "Why did he try so bard to get into office?" Not just ony office, but the United States Senate, whose ties to the military-industriel complex make it incapable of changing the dominant power relationships of our society? And why did he urge the people who have lost confidence in the Presidency to get behind the Democrats and put Jimmy Carter in the White House? Heyden gave us part of his answer the day the Democretic National Convention opened. Seeking to explain his presence as an alternate delegate

"eight years after having been gassed and indicted in Chicago," he wrote:

"Times have changed, Those who wanted to jail the likes of me have gone to jail themselves or are purged This is an amazing statement on which to base a major shift in political strategy. To most women, poor middle-class radicals, blacks, Puerto Ricans, Indians end other victims of our society, those who replaced the men who wanted to jail the likes of Tom and me represent a change without a difference.

Hayden's "enswer" is a clever but unconvincing way of suggesting thet changes have taken plece in Washington since Vietnam and Watergete thet make it possible for radicals to become part of the power structure without having to make undue compromises and without being used as relatively powerless tokens of the openness of the system to change. Nothing has happened to justify this shift from the politics of Power to the People back to the discredited politics of Power to a Handful of Politicians in Washington Elected by the People, not even if the candidates include enlightened veterans of the struggles of the 60's.

There was a reason that Tom Hayden accomplished more out of office in the last 15 years than anyone in Congress accomplished in office. He was part of a movement through which millions of people were able to express their discontents and aspirations through personal and collective action. They took political responsibility upon themselves rather than turning it over to someone to represent them and increasingly to think, strations. But people have extended act and make decisions for them.

The changes of structure and of spirit this country needs so badly will not be initiated in any of the three branches of government, though in the end they may be ratified there. They will come through the activities of alternate centers of power outside the formal Government. As these centers develop policies that are more viable and appeal to more people than those promoted by the Government, the present rulers of the country, elected and nonelected, will have to give way or be pushed aside.

We can see foreshadowings of this process in the movements for civil rights and to end the Vietnam War. American troops, for example, were not withdrawn from Vietnam because liberals were elected to office. The liberals for whom we were exhorted to vote in 1960 and 1964 increased American involvement and pursued the war relentlessly. Troops were withdrewn because youth refused to be drafted, soldiers deserted or refused to fight, vcterans threw their medals over the White House fence, marchers clogged the streets and civil disobedience spreed.

It is easy to be misled and think that the day of such movements is behind us. There are few mass demontheir concerns to e far wider range. With a powerful shove from feminists and gays, and a tug from new therapies and ancient spiritual movements, the new radical is struggling to unite the personal, political, spiritual and the material. The movement is bealthier and more revolutionary than it was in the late 60's.

From traveling throughout the country, my impression is that new centers power and direct resistance are gathering wisdom, strength and practical experience, as well as spreading geographically. They ere gently under-mining outworn beliefs on which the existing institutions rely: competition, inequality of wealth and power, male supremacy, white dominance, the superiority of representative to participatory democracy, and violence.

From time to time, they sally forth to ettack a flagrant evil or raise a pressing demand. Whether and wheo they will jell into a cohesive movement that mounts a sustained frontal attack on existing centers of undemocratic power is hard to predict. But for some of us they are where the action is.

They Have Still to Overcome

By William V. Shannon

WASHINGTON-A major American problem is how large numbers of lowincome and often poorly educated, poorly trained blacks can move out of the shallows of poverty and into the mainstream of society. This country has made long strides toward racial justice in the last 25 years but no one believes that the "American Dilemma" has been fully resolved.

Yet paradoxically the issue of social justice for blacks has scarcely surfaced in this national election, Even more curiously, blacks themselves seem sunk in political apathy and are expected to turn out on Election Day in relatively small numbers.

The most interesting development bas instead been an intellectual event. Prof. Herbert G. Gutman has published excerpts from his forthcoming book. "The Black Family in Slavery and Freedom, 1750-1925," in which he argues against the view "that migration [to the North] end urbanization. per se, caused widespread family dissolution among poor blacks."

Unfortunately, the Gutman study ends in 1925. He merely notes that "far more family disorganization followed the migration of the Southern black poor to Northern cities between 1940 and 1970 than before 1930."

Prof. Nathan Glazer of Harvard points out that "something quite serious" must bave happened because the stable black families described by Professor Gutman have not survived into the present. Last year, 35 percent of black families were headed by females. Only 56 percent of black children were living with both parents.

My own view is that there are at least three unrelated causes for the family deterioration measured by these statistics. First, in normal times, immigrants are a self-selected group. Only the strongest and most venturesome dare to emigrate whether from the old country in Europe or a farm in Mississippi. Most people stick with the familiar no matter how miserable ît is.

But in times of catastrophe, everyone flees-weak and strong, young and old. The mechanization and economic upheaval in Southern agriculture after 1940 was the equivalent of the major crop failures in 19th-century Europe that drove people off the land. These later black immigrants included some persons less strongly motivated than those who preceded them. They came in such large numbers and so swiftly that they overwhelmed the neighborhood institutions and the selfhelp networks slowly built up by the earlier generations of black immigrants, and suffered worse persocal disorganization.

Secondly, the later black immigrants arrived when the labor market had changed to their disadvantage. New York and Chicago had far less need of unskilled manual labor in 1970 than they had in 1910. The result was a higher rate of unemployment and a harder time for family men trying to make the adjustment from Southern farm to Northern city.

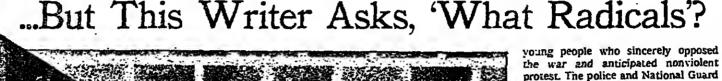

Finally, the last 30 years are the period of severe drug addiction. This curse was unknown to blacks living in the rural South. As Prohibition with its flood of illegal-and often lethal-whiskey was a crime-inducing. pathological force in the lives of many Americans in the 1920's, so drug addiction has been an independent demoralizing force in recent decades,particularly among younger blacks of marrying age.

Why are the statistics on disrupted family life significant? Obviously, the psychological deficiencies and distortions inherent in being raised in a single-parent family can be overcome but only with some effort and at some cost, financial or psychic or both. Ideally, e child should have both parents available as models and guides.

Government policies such as family allowances and the guaranteed minimum income should be developed to help parents stay together and cope with their common problems. There ought to be a greater Federal investmeet in cheap rental housing for families with children. Economic programs should seek full employment and particularly stress industries and projects that are labor-intensive.

But beyond such help as broad Federal policy can provide, blacks can best belp themselves by creating strong neighborhoods in the Northern cities. They oeed and want schools that maintain discipline and teach their children to read, honest police that arrest drug-pushers, and sanitation departments that actually pick up the garbage and keep the streets clean.

To gain these elementary vet escential objectives and to build political coalitions with predominantly white neighborhoods, black voters have to mobilize their political strength. Blacks babitually have a low turnoot because they are younger and poorer than the general population, and the young and poor of every race have a lower rate of political participation. Blacks. moreover, oever acquired the voting habit during their generations of disenfranchisement in the rural South. But like other groups that have preceded them on the urban frontier, the blacks must learn the habits of politics and the arts of coalition-building if they are to make the final move from a client group to sharers of power.

MEDFORD, Mass .- I am known for tolerance and geniality, but I confess one recent reirain has infuriated me. After witnessing the Democrats in convention born again, many commentators were troubled. Their somber query: "Where bave all the radicals gone? Apparently, to many the malignant, antisocial behavior of protesters in 1968 and '72 has been defined as "radicalism." In fact, if the disruptive militants were not on the Republican payroll, it was the biggest political coup since bootleggers got preachers out front to try to save Prohibition.

What, for example, is "radical" about shouting obscenities at a cop? Or defecating on an American flag? Or fornicating in public? By definition, a "radical" is one who wants to alter the roots of the system, not a bit player in a revolutionary burlesque show. In closed societies, the radical must often use violence to achieve desired objectives. Io a free country, the radical can utilize traditional, nonviolent techniques of public persuasion. But either way, he or she is dedicated to structural change, not to playing stupid games.

Because I made this distinction during the great American pseudorevolution of the late '60s and early '70s, my office was bombed, my classes disrupted, and my family threatened. However, unchastened, I still insist a true American radical is, for example, far more concerned with amending the National Labor Relations Act to include agricultural workers than with screaming, "Boycott Grapes!" A Frage or lettuce boycott may marginally help the United Farm Workers, but Cesar. Chavez would be far better off if the most "liberal" Congress in history had expanded N.L.R.B. coverage.

The problem is that amending a law lacks drama, does not provide a stage for revolutionary posturing. It is damn hard work that even tripping on pot or LSD will not accomplish. But the burlesque "radicals" - so beloved by television-don't beliave in hard work. That they leave to the unimaginative clods of the A.F.L.-C.I.O., whom, of course they hold in total contempt for their lack of chiliastic vision. To them, Mean Old Meany is an "Establishment" figure to be held in derision-a view that even the most stupid capitolist would consider inane.

There have always been characters like them waodering around in their paid much attention to them.

Then, however, two factors combined to make the mass critical. First, the unpopularity of the Vietnam War. and, second, the fabulous potentialities for "radical" burlesque offcred by television. While the networks were not exactly in the rent-a-crowd businessthey would have whored after any kind of sensationalism-the "kids" (as they were misleadingly called) knew a soft target when they saw one. Soon we got a daily television rerun on the theme that the "radicals" were the backbone of the antiwar movement.

This was, as serious polls consistently demonstrated, preposterous. The reason the average American signed off the Vietnam War was not an existential revelation that it was "immoral, obscene, and imperialist," but a growing cooviction that the war wasn't worth the price. Americans were off, somewhere at the end of the world, fighting and dying .- for what? Indeed, while the news media were canonizing the "kids," and their poble motives in, say, taking a dive to Canada or Sweden, the message I was picking up to the White House on my sooar from the "masses" was quite different. It was short sweet, and brutal: "Eod the - - - - war, and shoot the - - - - draft-dodgers."

Take the 1968 Democratic Conveotion in Chicago as a case in point. A clutch of nihilist thugs calling themselves "radicals" set out (as Jerry Rubin, one of the sportsmen, has freely admitted) to violently disrupt the festivities. Their cannon fodder was a bunch of innocents, students and other

PAWLING, N.Y .- I killed your cat early this moroing. You know, the black-and-white one, sleekfurred and friendly—about three months old, I'd say. I laid it down on the froot section of yesterday's newspaper and folded a part of the paper over its head-the white side upand then I took an old walking stick and I bashed the paper over the head as hard as I could. Four times, just to make sure. It broke the old walking

I thought you'd want to know, because it was your cat, and you must have loved it very much, for it always walked right in froot, crisscrossingin a trusting, brushing sort of way, trying to get picked up and petted.

At least I thought you ought to know how it died. How two dogs in the neighborhood, one a goldeo retriever, the other a red setter, had coroered the cat by our froot door, fought with it, and finally chewed through its backbone. Oh, it fought hard and the catshrieks of terror woke me up. But the dogs were too big, your cat too small, too young. So I did all I could think of to put it out of its misery, as it lay there on the grass, wet, bleeding. feces protruding, from fear or bite pressure or both, its eyes open, whining gently. I bad no choice.

But you did. Every year, literally scores of summer people leave their cats by our house-hoping, I'm sure. that they'll find homes with the farmer across the way. And most of them do, for a while. I've seen as many as 30 cats over there; left off by their loving owners who felt, I'm sure, that a dairy farm io the foothills of the Berkshires was a perfect spot for a cat. In a way it is, For a while, But cats procreate, and soon there are too many. And then one day there are none, and I've never asked the farmer what happens to them. I care, but I don't want to know.

And meybe you didn't want to know that I bludgeoned your kitten. All you wanted to remember was the delight your children had with it all summer long, as it grew from an eyesclosed fluff to hesitant staggerer to pretand hunter. I'm sure you wanted to remember it curled up on the end of a bed, with the shaft of sunlight warming its sweet-smelling fur.

But you can't remember only that, you know. Because life is a continnum, and we can't escape the responsibility of our acts. You enjoyed your cat, and your kids enjoyed your cat. And somehow you were able to divorce that enjoyment from your responsibility. You may have taught your children love and playfuloess and the wooder of nature. But you also taught them to throw away something that wasn't convenient, that didn't fit in with your plans, or your landlord's plans.

You taught them to pass a responsibility on to others-who were unknowing and unwilling. You convinced yourself-because you wanted tothat your kitten would be bappy and well fed on fresh cows' milk. I'm sure you even rationalized yourself into believing that it would be better off, really, with all those other cats.

No. I'm ooly talking about one cat, your cat, which must have been loved because it didn't go to the barn but across the road to our home to pley with our children (and our three cats). And that's where the dogs bit through its spinal column. And where I had to bash its bead io to relieve its agony. Because you really didn't care enough. Or you wouldn't have done it. You wouldn't even have accepted the responsibility in the first place. If you really bad cared.

"I plan to go to Alabama next week to talk to the state parole officials," Mr. Meyerson said. At present, he said, there are no plans to surrender Mr. Norris to the board in Alabama.

Support has been quietly building for Mr. Norris during recent months in light of the description of his life as a hardworking family man who has supported two decades.

Alabama's Attorney General, William J. Baxley, was one of those who wrote to the Parole Board on behalf of Mr. Norris. The Baxley letter chronicled the lengthy in the face of "pure terror." and controversial case and asked that Mr. Norris be pardoned. Mr. Barley com-mented in the letter:

"In my opinion, after a thorough re-view of all aspects of the case of Clarence Norris, that this individual oever should have been charged with any offense against Ruby Bates or Victoria Price, and that his repeated sentences of death and his 15 years spent incarcerated in Alabama prisons can only be termed

During an interview, Mr. Baxley said he did not want to appear to be pressur-ing the Parole Board. But, he added, "If they had considered this case like any normal parole violation, Mr. Norris would have been pardoned long ago."

He said his office would give the board the time to make a final decision. But, he continued, "We would not rule out the possibility of taking some legal action Norris said. ourselves."

floor at the Believue-Stratford in Philadelphia was crowded Thursday night as nearly 1,000 people staged a get-well gala for the ailing hotel

Rally to Ailing Hotel

PHILADELPHIA, Oct 8 - Nearly 1,000 prominent Philadeiphians went to a get-we'll party last night, a gala staged by the city's society, business and lance establishments to help the ailing Bellevue Stratford Hotel.

Everyone contributed - the whitegloved waiters who served the filet mignon and poured the champagne gave their time and the notables who attended paid $50 a plate.

Today the consensus was that the "I Love the Bellevue Gala" was a social success and a belp to the hotel, but that more help may be needed if Phila-de thia's equivalent to New York City's Plaza Hotel is to recover fully.

No Employees Laid Off Yet

The 72-year-old Bellevue is in the third month of the debilitating psychological aftereffects of the outbreak last July of "Legion disease"—the still unidentified illness that struck more than 150 persons and killed 29 of them after a convention of the Pennsylvania American Legion. The Bellevue was the headquarters hotel for the week-long convention last July.

The management of the holding company that owns both the Bellevue Sizatiord and the Ben Franklin Hotel, the two largest here, will not say pre-cisely how bad business is. But on the parquet dance floor of the merrily crowded Grand Ballroom at the Bellevue last night, Gustave G. Amsterdam, the chairman of the botel company acknowledged that the occupancy rate at the Bellevue "is still way down, back to about half normal." The hotel's press spokesman said "In all honesty, we can't say that there has been a surge."

The normal occupancy rate at the Bellevue would be about 80 percent, for most of the year. The occupancy rate reportedly fell as low as 8 percent in early August, immediately after the so-called Legion illness here became national news and a national mystery.

The management so far has not laid off anyone due to the business slump, but a reckoning day is not far off, ac-cording to hotel officials. The Bellevue got a lift of sorts last week when the Stote American Legion decided to try Philadelphia again for its convention in 1978. But the Bellevue's public rooms—restaurants and bars that used to be crowded-are still notice depopulated.

The Bellevue gala last night was show of leadership by this city's prominent people. "Look," they said, in effect, "we're dancing at the Bellevue!" Pictures of the crowded dance floor were given prominent display today in all the Philadelphia news-

Certainly not since the Legionnaires were here by the thousands last July a noisy, ill-dressed, no-tipping bunch who filled the bathtubs with beer-onice and shunned the hotel's bars, according to several old-time waiters and barmen here-has the Bellevue been

Tickets were $50 a plate and the charity will get about $45,000 of the proceeds.

But the sentimental beneficiary was intended to he the botel. As William G. Chadwick, the Bellevue's resident manager, put it today. "The ball last night showed that these people think well of our hotel, and that's what it was all about."

Former United States Senator Joseph S. Clark, 74 years old and suffering from a painful back, sat at a small table with his wife, Iris, in an antercom off the jammed pre-dinner cocktail reception and said: "I really think everybody decent in Philadelphia is here—and some who are not so decent. I refer to Mayor Rizzo."

Mr. Clark and many of the gala's sponsors were supporters of the mayoral recall drive against Mr. Rizzo that collapsed last week when the Pennsylvania Supreme Court ruled the recall procedure unconstitutional. Mayor's presence at the party last night was regarded as more than usually significant because the Rizzos, as one of the Mayor's friends put it, "rare-

The final phase of a management study of the Consolidated Edison Company hes concluded that the utility could reduce costs or improve revenues by at least $27.6 million a year.

The study was conducted by the consulting company of Arthur D. Little Inc. It investigated 10 specific areas of compa ny operations, includiog those in the Bronx operating division, which represents 10 to 15 percent of the company's total operating expenses. Potential savings in that division alone were estimated

Europe's 'Sometime Generation': Freemasonry of the Open Road

By ALDEN WHITMAN Special to The New York Times

LONDON-Claude received his degree in psychology last summer from the University of Clermont-Ferrand. which is in his hometown in central France. He now is selling ladies' lingerie and saving every franc until next spring, when he will join the growing ranks of Western Europe's "Sometime

"There are no teaching posts in psychology that I am hursting to take, and no clinical jobs, either," Claude said the other day as he was traveling in a second-class train coach to Lyons. "Sometime, of course, I'll probably have to settle down, maybe two years, maybe three. Now, though, I want to see the world beyond France, the countries I read about in school."

Clande, who is 25 years old, sturdy and fit-looking, is typical of the thoosands of young women and men who have opted out of working for a conventional living until that "sometime" when they will feel obliged to work in a society many of them distrust, or at least have little faith in.

The "Sometime Generation" members are Americans, Canadians, Britons, Irish, French, Swiss, West Germans, Italians, Greeks, Dutch and Belgians. Some are Eurasians. Almost none are from Eastern Europe. They are mostly in their 20's and college-educated, They are not hippies, nor do they consider themselves indolent or shiftless. They are not part of a drag culture, except perhaps for an occasional joint of marijuana. Most of them eschew cigarettes and are proud of their lithe, hard-mus-

Not Seen by Most Visitors

Most American visitors to Europe, jaunting and jetting from one Hilton to another, seldom see the "Sometime Generation" for these youths travel chiefly afoot, dressed in jeans and hardy walking shoes and carrying backpacks. When absolutely necessary, they travel second class They are they travel second class. They eat in the cheap restaurants and sleep in bedrolls in einexpensive hostels. They cross the English Channel by boat by the hundreds.

They enjoy a freemasonry of the open road and exchange information about accommodations in cities, towns and villages across Europe. They exude vitality and a carefree spirit, because for most of them it is the best of times

In interviews with a score or more of these young men and women in the last fortnight in Britain, France and Switzerland, it is evident that, although they are not political, they feel disjointed and disquieted by the society and culture of their parents. Hendrick is a 26-year-old Dutch stu-

"Sometime I will go hack and complete my baccalaureate in pharmacology and perhaps get a joh in a drug company," he said, adding: But first I want to taste something hesides the smugness of Holland, Besides, I don't feel like being a drug company chemist and working on drugs that may prove harmful. I want to do something for which I myself am responsible, not to make big profits out of human ailments."

Sitting in an open-air cafe in Le Buisson, in the Dordorgne, Mona said that she was 26, a University of Leeds graduate and qualified to be a grade school teacher.

"But there are no decent jobs in England," the fair-haired, ruddy-cheeked Briton said. "I worked as a secretary in an accounting firm—and dull it was, let me tell you—but I saved my pence. Sometime, I'll have to go back and take a joh I do not want, but meantime here I am about to visit the paleolithic caves in the Dordorgne.

"I travel cheap. I sleep in my bedroll in a railway station, if I have to, and I wash my things in a lavatory."

Nicholas carries in his backpack a thumbed copy of "The Thoughts of Chairman Mao," but, he said, he is not a Communist. "I would like to live in a fair society," he explained, "where my worth as a human being is what counts."

Goes South to Pick Grapes

Nicholas realizes that his chances of going to China are remote, so, mean-while, he is heading for the South of France, where the grape harvest is under way. "I will work a few weeks picking the grapes," he said, "and then I will take a cheap steamer from Marseilles to Barcelona. I very much want to visit Spain, where change is taking Jacques is a Swiss from the canton of Vaud. He has just completed two weeks of compulsory military service, which he said, "is a big joke, yes?" Jacques, who speaks some English as well as his native French, says he finds the Swiss "pompous, rigid and moneyhunery.

He has been to college but has no degree. "I want to get away from Switzerland for a couple of years," he said. "I am going to England, and I think I can find a job there with a British family, teaching French to their children, My friends tell me it is possible."

Jacques would rather try his inck abroad than work as a salesman or in a bank. "I do not want to make riches," he explained. "I do not want to be a computer like my countrymen. Sometime, I guess, I will have to com-promise, but for the time being I want to see life in the rest of Europe.

Other members of the "Sometime Generation," like Rosa, think they know a lot about the United States. They read the Paris newspaper Le Monde and they ask an American as

"Mr. Carter," asked Georges, a University of Paris anthropology graduate now walking toward Greece to see its antiquities, "is he a bright man? Will he make for peace with the Soviet Union, or will he make more atoms for bombs?"

Georges, as with his confreres of the "Sometime Generation," has acquired a smattering of a half-dozen languages. He, too, is unmarried, as were most of those interviewed. "Yes, sometime I will marry," he said, "but there is no hurry. First, there is the necessity of seeing what else in the world there is besides France. First, I should get to know many other young people and make friends.

"It is healthy, yes, to be young and inquisitive? It is healthy not to be tied down to the old ways. Maybe I will find a new way of life form myself. There must be a new way, for society cannot just go on being the old way,

By BERNADINE MORRIS

The small fashion exhibitions in the Shirley Goodman Resource Center, part of the Fashion Institute of Technology, are fast rivaling the more-elaborate productions uptown at the Costume Institute of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The school is at 27th Street and Seventh Avenue, a few blocks south of the heart of the garment district. The newest exhibition is cozy, featuring three designs each from the 17 American designers elected to the Coty Hall of Fame. The exhibition is simply but hrilliantly staged by Marty Bron-son, who also was responsible for the much-praised show of Paul Poiret.

The show provides a bird's-eye view of the best of American design. The clothes were contributed by the people involved, and the school hopes to keep at least one creation of each designer to serve as the nucleus of a permanent display. The show previewed last week at the Coty Award presentation. It is now open to the public, free of charge, un-til Oct. 16. It is closed Sundays and Mondays. Hours on other days are 10 A.M. to 4 P.M., except Tuesdays, when closing time is 9 P.M.

Hall of Fame designers are those who have won Coty Awards three times. Fourteen of them design women's clothes. The paucity of men's designers is due to the fact that men's awards were not given until 1968.
Two of the three men's designers represented, Ralph Lauren and Bill Kaiserman, were elected this year. The third is Piero Dimitri.

The women's awards originated in 1943. Norman Norell, the first winner, was also the first to enter the Hall of Fame-in 1956. He is represented by, among other styles, a pale organdy dress with a mink-bordered capelet.

The James Galanos exhibition, including one of his masterfully draped chiffon dresses, is the favorite of Mr. Bronson, the director, who says he shouldn't have favorites. The movement and grace of the clothes are unsur-passed, he says.

"Many people have been stopping at the Claire McCardell exhibit and remembering that they still had Mc-Cardells around," Mr. Bronson observed, Miss McCardell is the American sportswear designer who received her

Hall of Fame award posthumously in Ben Zuckerman's coat and suit designs also are arousing a lot of nos-talgia, according to Mr. Bronson.

The Calvin Klein clothes, with their casual grace, look particularly current. Perhaps the most amusing dress is Geoffrey Beene's sequined sheath with 71 picked out in contrasting beads on the chest in the manner of a football uniform. Halston's current asymmetric V neck is there, along with Bonnie Cashin's mohair cape and an early wool cutout Rudi Gernreich swimsuit. Pauline Trigère's dresses are all black, for evening, embellished with rhinestones. Bill Blass, Anne Klein and Oscar de la Renta are also represented. along with Kasper, the 1976 winner.

Wigs by Antonio Capparelli suggest the period of the clothes. For the rest, the displays are clean, well-lit and spare, decorated only with a photo-graph of the designer.

No hostess worth her salt would dream of setting a table with milk car-tons and the disposable containers used for take-out orders of cole slaw and french fries. And as for paper plates, perish the thought! They're not to be countenanced except for picnics and Yet many who should know better are doing just this kind of thing. Actu-ally it's all very chic and new, for these "throwaways" are made of white por-celain and are definitely for keeps. They're the result of collaboration between two women highly respected in their fields—Noma Copley, a gold-smith, and Charlotte Potok, a potter.

Porcelain Paper, as it is called, won't come as a surprise to admirers of Miss Copley's work in precions metals. It's exactly the sort of fun she's been indulging in for years, using safety pins, buttons and the like as forms for fine jewelry. There's no compromise of artistic integrity on Miss Potok's part either. The duplication of the imper-fections in the disposable paper products is intended to show it realistically, the way pop art should. The collection evolved from the handmade sugar bowls (takeout cartons with sterling wire handles) and cream pitchers (half-pint milk cartons) that the two women collaborated on and sent out as gifts last Christmas. They were so well received that a whole service was designed and Miss Copley and Miss Potok, joined by Liz Bader, formed the American Apple Pie Company and licensed Bennington Potters to produce and ship the line. It includes such items as plates with finted edges, mugs modeled after paper cups with fold-back handles and jugs like quart milk cartons.

The most expensive piece is a mush-room basket with silver staples and silver wire handle that would serve admirably for crudités or flowers ($50) and the cheapest a hread and butter plate ($4.)

Porcelain Paper can be obtained from Bloomingdele's.

The Walking Line is hardly your conventional china either, but it's bound to bring a smile to the glummest face at the breakfast table.

EX-CONVICT WRITER

Edgar J. Smith, Jailed for 14 Years for Killing Jersey Girl, Charged With Knifing Woman on Coast

By EVERETT R. HOLLES

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 8—Edgar J. Smlth, who was convicted of the 1957 killing of a Hackensack, N.J., high school girl and whose prison writings in 14 years on death row attracted wide sympathy and helped him win his freedom in 1971, was sought here today on charges of kidnapping and attempted murder.

Mr. Smith, 42 years old, was charged in the complaint filed by Assistant District Attorney William Kennedy with ab-ducting Lefteriya Ozbun, a 33-year-old employee of a Suburban clothing factory, from the plant's parking lot a week ago today and stabbing her when she strug-gled to escape from his car.

The former convict, who has been living in the San Diego area since August 1974 and who has been unemployed since January, is being hunted throughout the Southwest and in Mexico on a warrant fixing bail at $250,000.

After he was sentenced to death in New Jersey for the 1957 bludgeon killing of Victorio Zielinski, a 15-year-old high school cheerleader, Mr. Smith's protests that he had been coerced into making a false confession attracted the support of William F. Buckley Jr., the writer, and several other prominent persons who took up his cause.

Accepted a Reduced Charge

A Federal appeals court ordered a new trial for Mr. Smith in 1971, and he was subsequently allowed to plead "no defense" to a reduced charge of second-degree murder and was sentenced to 25 to 30 years in prison. He was given credit, however, for the 14 years he had served on death row and another seven years off for good behavior and was released on parole Dec. 6, 1971. He was finally released from parole last December. The Zielinski girl's body was discovered in a gravel pit in Hackensack, her head njured by a rock, ber nose and jaw fractured and the upper part of her clothing torn away. She had not been sexually molested, according to the medical examiner's report.

According to the authorities, Mrs. Ozbun, who is recovering in Bay General Hospital here from a stab wound in the abdomen, was returning to her job at he Ratner clothing manufacturing plant n Chula Vista, south of San Diego, near the Mexican border, after an afternoon shopping trip when she was accosted io the plant parking lot by a stranger: Victim's Account of Assault

The man struck her, she said, taped her hands behind her back and forced her into his car, saying, "I'm going to take your money, stick this knife into you and then get rid of you."

She said she screamed for help, kicked and smashed the car's froot windshield while it was moving. The man grabbed her and managed, while driving, to sit hands free of the tape, grabbed the wheel of the car and swerved it off the road. Her abductor then stabbed her, Mrs. SOUGHT IN STABBING Ozbun said, and brought the car to a stop on southoound interstate 5, near the Ozbun said, and brought the car to a Mexican border where she tumbled to the ground and her assailant sped away. Mr. Keonedy said witnesses to the ab-duction provided a description of the abductor and the license number of his car, a brown Pontiac, which led police to an apartment occupied by Mr. Smith and his wife in Chula Vista.

Mr. Smith's wife, Page, whom he married last December, said today she has not seen her husband since he drove away in the Pontiac five hours before Mrs. Ozbun's abduction.

The warrant for Mr. Smith's arrest charges him with kidnapping for the purpose of robbery with bodily harm, which carries a penalty of life imprisonment without parole in California, and with attempted murder and assault to commit

After his release from prison in 1971, Mr. Smith set out on a lecture tour, re-portedly covering 80,000 miles by car, and at other times has engaged in freelance writing and public relations work or has drawn unemployment insurance.

The hazards grow the longer the measures remain in effect. The most obvious one is a decline in Industrial spending for new factories and machinery, currently a vital objective of Britain's economic policy. ## IN AREA'S RETAILING September, the First Full Period

By ISADORE RARMASH

Suoday store openings, begun by major retailers Aug. 29 and joined by additional retailers since, have helped sales in New York City and the metropolitae

In September, the first full month of retailers" seven-day-a-week operations, the additional day has added 3 percent to 5 percent in volume and has made the difference in what would otherwise have been a dismal month.

More than 70 major department and specialty stores, as well as more than 1,000 smaller stores, have begun doing business on Sundays in the metropolitan

The effect was indicated in a monthly survey for the five weeks ended last Saturday, which found that seven of the city's largest retailers had an average sales decline of 1.4 percent from the same 1975 period. Stores in the metropolitan area did slightly better, register-ing an average 1 percent gain over 1975

Without the Sunday's operations, re-tail executives said yesterday, most of the big stores surveyed would have had sizable sales declines or small sales gains Average performance in the city and the area would have been much worse, they

Major Retailers Open

None of the major Fifth Avenue stores or their branches joined in the Sunday openings. J. W. Mays Inc., an eight-store chain, bas not been open on Sundays, but a spokesman said yesterday that "in view of an increased demand," the chain is considering Sunday operations during the Christmas season.

Fortunoff's Inc., a large Westbury, L.I., specialty store, plans to open tomorrow for the first time.

Retail business in New York City, and increasingly in the metropolitan area, has been erratic all year. For that reason, a number of the major retailers began opening their stores on Sundays after the New York State Court of Appeals set aside key sections of the so-called Sunday blue laws last Junc. Although certain seasonal differences may also be a factor, September retail business was better than in August, when the big stores reported sales declines of S.3 percent from a year ago in the city

But the Sunday openings have not been without some problems, such as a transfer of business from Saturdays and Mondays. There has also been continuing oppo-sition to the concept of Sunday com-merce. The dissent is coming from some union locals and from smaller retailers, mainly because of staffing problems. Hearings on whether there should be a new state law banning most Sunday openings have oeen scheduled by the Assembly Commerce Committee later this

Patents: Way to Speed Delivery Of Packages by Post Is Invented

By STACY V. JONES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8-A packagelabeling apparatus that was patented this week is intended to speed mail delivery. It is now being tested in the research and development department of the United States Postal Service at Rockville, Md. Patent 3,984.

279, which is assigned to the RCA Corporation, was granted of the Week to Bohdan W. Siryl, an engineer in the company's advanced technology laboratories at Camden, N.J. The work was done under a contract with the Postal Service. The Siryj invention is described as a high-speed, yet relatively simple, ap-paratus that attaches "bull's eye" labels to parcels. The "bull's eye" consists of concentric circles containing coded address information that can be read by laser scanners as a stream of of various sizes and shapes passes along a conveyor belt. The address information is used in the automatic sorting of parcels for fast delivery.

The labels are coded by an operator using a conventional keyboard. They are applied automatically by a vacuum-conrolled apparatus and are held in place by pressure-sensitive adhesive.

Mr. Siryj is confident that the label-Mr. Siryj is confident that the labeling apparatus will speed package delivery. An RCA spokesman said the design eliminated the need for complex, expensive sensors required for earlier equipment. As the label is being fastened to a parcel, the apparatus "irons" it on, minimizing the chance that it will fall off. And labels can be securely affixed, even to parcels that are at an angle to the labeling head.

Computer Controls Ink-Jet Printing

What is called "ink-jet printing" is relatively new but promising. Tiny jets of ink are deflected under computer control to form letters or numbers. The jets break up into individual droplets. which are either electrically charged or left neutral as they pass through electrodes. An electrical field between the electrodes and the paper then delects the charged droplets so that only the desired ones reach the paper to form letters or pictures.

An apparatus for charging the ink droplets is offered in Patent 3.984,843, which was granted this week to Lawrence Kuhn, a staff member at the Re-search Laboratory of the International Business Machines Corporation io Yorktown Heights, N.Y.

Yorktown Heights, N.Y.

The key section of the apparatus is a thin wafer of silicon in which arrays of charged electrodes and the circuitry that controls their operation are formed. The processing of the silicon wafer is very similar to that used to make the integrated circuits found in computers and pocket calculators. In an additional production step required, holes are formed in the wafer to let holes are formed in the water to let the ink jets pass through.

The new design is regarded as a major simplification over previous ink-jet devices because the electronic circuits that determine which droplets are charged and which are not are built into the silicon wafer. Earlier devices had separate wires leading from exter-nal circuits to each charging electrode —a relatively complicated assembly. The LB.M. device requires only a small number of signal wires to the silicon

It's essentially the same message that drove the price of gold to a peak of $197.50 an ounce on Dec. 30, 1974the day before it became legal for American citizens to own gold bullion for the first time in 41 years.

Since then, however, to the pained dismay of gold bugs everywhere, gold has fallen on lean times. By late last August, the London market had sold down to $106.60 an ounce, the lowest point in almost three years.

Gold, for the moment anyway, hasturned out to be a negative inflation cans, first of all, though subjected to some fairly heavy drum beating, just did not rush out and snap up gold in the manic way the speculators hoped

An upsurge in the American economy, a drop in the rate of inflation and heavy sales by the International Mone-tary Fund have also all had an impact on gold price.

No one has been hurt more than South Africa -Gold is the country's major export and the advertising campaign behind the Krugerrand is de-signed to belp South Africa sell more of the precious metal. The coin is being promoted not for its munismatic value—as a collector's item—but as a convenient way to own gold.

Dealers say the campaign has stimulated sales of the Krugerrand some-what According to Fred Bogart, a vice-president of the Republic National Bank, one of the three major wholesalers of the coin here, said "volume bas built up, but nothing spectacular."

Any increase in volume, of course, helps both South Africa and the dealers who make the market in the coin. Because it contains exactly one ounce of gold, the Krugerrand's basic price can be determined by a check on the closing price of the metal in most

However, that price, while a handy index, does not tell everything about the value of the Krugerrand, which sells at a premium, which the advertisements describe it as "small" and attribute to "coinage and distribution."

"Small," of course, is a relative term. As with everything else, it pays to shop Perera Fifth Avenue Inc., for exampla, was quoting single Krugerrands at $129 each one day last week and at $125 each in lots of 10. Deak-Perera International Inc., at 41

How do these measures affect the average Briton now?

They affect him harshly and instantly. The 4.5 million people paying off their rates would go up by 13½ percent, from 10½ percent to 12½ percent. Mortgage rates here are oot fixed; they float with prevailing interest rates. It means that a person who was paying $217 per months of $25,000 persons. s317 per month on a 25-year mortgage of $33,000 will now have to pay $359.

British banks, unlike those in the United States, actively encourage depositors to overdraw their accountsand then the banks bit them with interest charges on the balance due, Most Britons, at ooe time or another, have used the service, and bankers here thought that perhaps as many as 25 percent of all depositors use it regularly. Those Britons now pay 16 percent on the overdrawn amounts, and Barclay's Bank today raised that to 18 percent. So far, however, none of the banks has raised the rates charged on installment loans or on bank creditcard balances, but if the new lending rate remains in force a month or two, they are likely to increase as well.

The other side of the interest charges is the interest on deposits, and there, at least, the British get something back for their pains. Until today, Barclay's was paying 8½ percent on regular deposits, and now it will pay II per-

What if the Government's banking measures don't work?

If these measures fail-and maybe even if they do not-the Government could cut public spending and welfare services by even more than the nearly $2 billion it has earmarked in next year's budget. It could also raise income taxes and the value-added tax, which is similar to a sales tax. Many of Britain's critics, in fact, feel than the ones announced today, bot they are also politically risky, and it is obvious that the Labor Government fears that such moves could force it out of power.

What does all this mean for the pound?

If the foreign investors and foreign governments who bold pounds are really convinced that the British Government has found a way to slow inflation and rehabilitate its economy, they might be less anxious to sell pounds, and they may even become confident enough in Britain to start buying them agaio. Their inclination so far seems to be to wait and see.

How has the fall of the pound-from $2.02 at the start of the year to $1.66 -affected Britain?

It has forced up the prices of all imports, and it was, therefore, the most important single force in thwarting the Government's efforts to control inflation. But unlike the rise in the lending rate, the pound's fall is not something that the average Briton feels instantly, except when he is trying to change money at a foreign airport. He is used to rising prices, and it is hard for him to know whether it is the pound this time or the settlement cost of a strike or a new tax or the drought that sends up the price of his groceries. Is not the fall of the pound supposed to help British exports? Yes, it is and it has, but again, i is difficult to know by how much. Some exporters have maintained their prices to rake in greater profits to invest in new factories or pay their stockholders. Others have been asked by their foreign customers long ago to bill them in pounds rather than foreign currency. As a result, the importer reaps all the benefits from the decline and the British exporter nothing.

Why does the pound take such a There are other countries with trou-

McNamara Says That Easing of Lending Terms Hinges on a New Increasel in Capital

By EDWIN L. DALE Jr. Special to The New York Themes

MANILA, Oct. 8-Robert S. McNamara, president of the World Bank, told the tinance ministers of the less developed countries today that the bank could relax the recent hardening of its lending terms once the United States and a few other industrial countries agreed upon an in-crease in the bank's capital.

In his concluding remarks at the annual meeting here of the bank and the Interna-tional Monetary Fund, Mr. McNamara did not mention the United States by name. But the United States has taken the lead, for various reasons, in imposing a "goslow" policy on the bank.

H. Johannes Witteveen, managing director of the I.M.F., cited remarks of both rich and poor countries in the specches here this week and concluded that there is a clear and general view that the path to sustainable economic growth and to the reduction of unemployment lies in the elimination of inflation-ary psychology and the restoration of a reasonable degree of price stability."

Inflation a Major Enemy

A few countries in their speeches here, such as Spain, expressed some reservations about this view. But it was clear that even most of the poor countries—or at least their finance ministers-now saw inflation as a major enemy to their pros-pects of a better life.

Mexican Devaluation Expected To Cut Monsanto Net 10 Million

The Monsanto Company disclosed vesterday that the recent devaluation of the Mexican peso would reduce this year's third-quarter earings hy about $10 million, or 27 cents a share.

James J. Kerley a group vice president and chief financial officer, said that thirdquarter net would be in the range of $1.55 NORTH LAS VEGAS, Nev., Oct. 6 to $1.60 a share, compared with $1.56 in the 1975 period. Excluding the peso devaluation, Mr. Kerley said that earnings from operations to the third quarter were up 17 to 20 percent from last year.

Mr. Kerley said that the company expected a reasonably strong fourth quarter but that it would be difficult to match last year's fourth quarter earnings of $2.20 a share. He added that the company continued to feel it would finish this year with another record io terms of both sales and net income. Last year, Mon-santo earned $306.3 or $8.63 a share, on record sales of $3.62 billion.

The peso devaluation charge in the third quarter relates, in Monsanto's case, to the company's wholly owned suheidiary, Compania Industrial dePlasticos S.A., and a 39 percent equity interest in Indus-trial Resistol S.A. Prior to the devaluation, Monsanto's Mexican sales from these two operations were about $100 millioo.

Actioo Industries said it had voluntarily disclosed the matter to the Federal Maritime Commission "to determine whether the rebates involve violations of the Shipping Act which could give rise to civil penalties." The company said any such penalties would have no material adverse effect on the company's financial condition. Management has directed the practice of receiving rebates from ocean carriers be discontinued, it added.

About New York

Unnoticed Pleasures Abound

By FRANCIS X. CLINES

Bob Greenman, a teacher at James Madison High School in Brooklyn, hitched a ride to work down Bedford Avenue the other morning-from the same house he lived in 20 years ago when he attended the same schooland never once did he think of the city fiscal crisis and such melodramatic questions as "Will New York survive?"

Mindless of Felix Rohatyn and the other moguis of the fiscal rescue, Mr. Greeoman woodered instead about his own grand project, the alumni gathering, and whether Bill Kaplan would make it from Chicago and Claire Kagan would get here in time from Los Ao-geles in join the other Madison grads from the 1950's. More than 300 have responded, and the event tomorrow seems likely to be a success.

New York is not exactly Grover's Corners, but it does bave countless or-dinary satisfactions like Mr. Greenman's, to be regularly enjoyed by the uncelebrated witness whose life is a thread in the city fabric. The city, fur example, has a crowing rooster, just-like in Act I of "Our Town."

At least that's what Betsy Williams, a psychotherapist who lives at 201 West 89th Street, thinks she hears early every morning, somewhere in the neighborhood.

"I hear a rooster crowing at 5 A.M.," she reports firmly. "This is a very curious thing, you must admit, and it's also very pleasant, bringing a little bit of the country into Manhattan."

So let us now praise minor city treasures, such as the simple sound of gently bubbling water as it finws in the floor-level inlaid-stone pool of the Ad-Din Room. This 250-year-old room of dark wood panels and deep red cushions is one of the countless splendid sights offered in the Islamic collection at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. But it is a sound—the trickle of water in the floor fountain—that suspends the grating context of the city and makes the room a restful discovery.

Secondary pleasures are all about us. Looking down as he walked along Eighth Avenue the other day, Ton Wesselmann saw the ground open up in the familiar steel lacework of a subway grating. Several feet below him, he spied a series of thriving allanthus trees, growing from the shadows to-ward the shoe-speckled sunlight. Not just a lone, foolish seedling or two, but. a grove—the Wesselmann grave hence-forth—strung out below 23d and 24th

"All this growing io the city equivalent to leaf mold on a rocky countryside," Mr. Wesselmann observed in a kind of urban field note, "Growing, presumably, atop concrete, in a layer of long deposited city dirt and soot and chewing gum, with a rich paper mulch of gum aod cigarette wrappers."

Check it out, as the men with the handbills for "massage" parlors like to say, The Wesselmaon grove is growing.

With green leaves. And despite the fis-

Does J. S. Bach count as one of these recondary city pleasures? As played by Frank Morana on a batterypowered keyboard strapped atop a shopping cart, perhaps so. He only plays Bach as he works the passing crowds from doorways, and even the pewter cup that discreetly invites conributions has a picture of Bach on the lid. More than the music, it is Mr. Morana's attitude of brow-locked immersion in the notes and scowling removal from the audience that makes this particular small pleasure. 'No pictures," he snaps at a tourist, maintaining tempo.

"Bach will remind them of their nature," he says sternly of passing crowds. "I tried Haydn and Mozart. Gret music, but it can't be taken out of its concert context like Bach can and played in the streets."

A bouquet of the finest leather is part of the pleasure of seeing Abe Feldman working with bis awls and sheets of cowbide in the closet-like repair room in the basement of Croocb & Fitzgerald, the luggage shop on Madison Avenue at 48th Street.

The aroma is rich and thick, and it is one of the few places in the city where it is pleasant to be kept waiting, just smelling the shop and studying the travel-weary Vuittons and battered attaché cases lined up like consump-tives at a rest hume.

"I tried to quit this business 27 times," the 62-year-old leather craftsman said, "But what I really like about it is you take a job and do it all from start in finish. Where else do you get that satisfaction today?"

Well, in more places than you might guess, if somehow the mundane could only be heightened and the nondescript could be described to a thorough search of the city routine.

At Connie's Italian Cuisine Restaurant in Richmond Hill, Queens, for example, it is a silent pleasure to witness the evaporation of your own first impression that this is merely another darkened hole-in-the-wall

This happens after Jimmy, the chef. turns on his broiler and stove and produces a wondrous veal parmigiana saodwich, and fills the place with pasta, sauce, cheese and meat aromas that rival Abe Feldman's leather stock.

For ambiance, there sits Tony Sadowsky, a local Democratic district leader. putting away plates of antipasto and pasta, and telliog the clientele that the oeighborhood's concern over racial change is rooted not in bias but in fear of shabbiness.

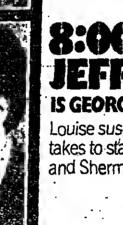

"What I mean is, the other day I saw a guy chasing his chickens down Jamaica Avenue," he explalos. "That's the problem."

The customers laugh, and Mr. Sadow-sky's protective coat-holder says to an outsider, "That's off the record." He is told that most of New York is off the record, and that's the pity.
